House limits farm subsidy payments to $20,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House has accepted an amendment to the massive farm bill that supporters say will put a tight annual limit of $20,000 on subsidy payments to farmers growing wheat, cotton and feed grain.

The amendment by Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., won by 246 to 163 Tuesday. Findley said the rider would set "a reasonable and effective limit on how deep into the U.S. Treasury a wealthy farmer can reach— surely $20,000 is deep enough."

Findley's amendment plowed under an earlier one by Rep. Bob Bergland, D-Minn., which the House had approved by 313 to 89.

Bergland's amendment would have cut off subsidies at $20,000 per crop instead of the $37,500 per crop level recommended by the House Agriculture Committee. Current law sets it at $55,000 per crop but critics claim this is loaded with loopholes.

A Senate-passed version of the farm bill cut the level to $20,000 per farmer but under terms that are not as tight as those in the Findley amendment.

Findley's provision would put various payments under the limit, including so-called resource adjustment payments for not growing crops. Under the original version of the House bill and under the Senate-passed bill, payments for resource adjustment would be excluded from the limit.

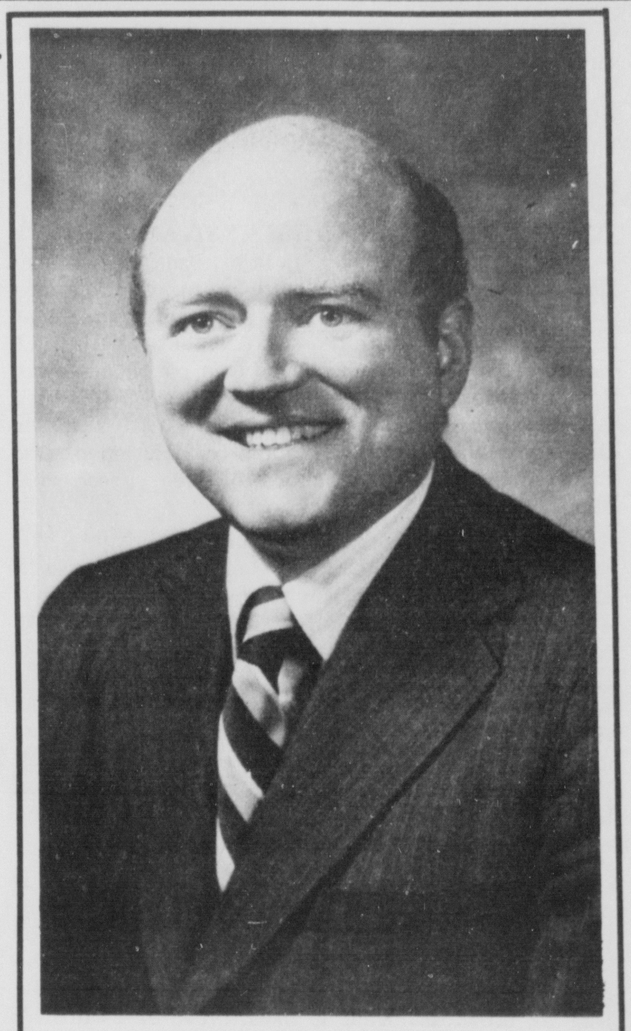

Meanwhile, as the House worked its way into the first parts of the comprehensive farm bill, it voted 164 to 139 against an amendment by Rep. Steven S. Symms, R-Idaho, that would have blocked use of federal funds to finance the sale of wheat or feed grain to the Soviet Union or mainland China.

Earlier, with women spectators protesting milk prices, the House began its work amid word that the Nixon administration would accept a compromise on a key provision.

Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan and Agriculture Committee Chairman W.R. Poage, D-Tex., said they understood the administration would go along with the committee's suggested target prices for cotton, wheat and feed grain such as corn if an escalator clause is deleted.

Rep. B.F. Sisk, D-Calif., said he would propose such an amendment in an effort to win the President's support for this concept that sets a level of guaranteed incomes for farmers. Under the target price plan, crop subsidies running some $3.5 billion annually would be abolished if farm prices stay high.

If prices drop sharply because of high production or a loss of export markets, growers would get subsidy payments making up the difference between their sales returns and the target price. The escalator clause was aimed at annually revising the target to reflect cost of production.

Escapee arrested, posts bond

Police Tuesday afternoon arrested Lanny Satterfield, 112 Third St., for escaping custody, resisting arrest, interfering with a police officer and disorderly conduct.

Satterfield was arrested early Saturday morning, along with seven other young people during a disturbance at Park-A-Lot Drive Inn, but escaped from custody at the police station.

Police said Satterfield called them later and told them he would come to the police station after he went to the hospital to be checked for an injury he said he received during the disturbance.

When Satterfield did not show up at the station, he was arrested. He posted $425 bond and was released.

Other arrests announced today include Joseph Robert Kinder, 1633 Matthews, for two counts of assault and battery and Marion W. Stallings, 837 Lake St., for improper parking.

Hay that sheds rain

Dozens of rolled bales of hay lie in fields of land farmed by Bill LaValle two miles west of Sikeston on Salcedo Road. Cattle are mixed in with the large bales in the background. The round bales can be formed in a one-man operation and will shed rain, keeping the hay dryer than do conventional bales.

Phelps assumes ombudsman

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Lt. Gov. William C. Phelps, who called himself "fulltime Phelps" during the 1972 campaign, took on a new job today.

He plans to become the state ombudsman, a man who hears citizens' complaints and goes to bat for them.

Phelps' office has printed blue and white brochures advertising the lieutenant governor as ombudsman.

Phelps' tenure in office so far has been marked by new undertakings. His determination to preside over the Missouri Senate has resulted in a court battle with Senate Democrats who didn't mind allowing Phelps to preside but preferred to decide when he can.

The Republican lieutenant governor proposed the job of ombudsman several months ago, but a bill to give him the title failed in the Senate. Phelps will assume the responsibilities without legislative action.

He planned a series of news conferences today in Jefferson City, Springfield, St. Louis and Kansas City to discuss the program.

Asked whether his office could handle the extra work, Phelps said in an interview that "we hope to show the need and maybe the legislature will wake up to the need" and appropriate more money for his office. However, he can start the program without any extra money, he says.

Phelps has a budget of $53,000 for the coming fiscal year. His staff includes a secretary, administrative assistant and two summer interns. The lieutenant governor receives $16,000 a year.

Phelps, 39-year-old former Missouri House member, has worked to expand the lieutenant governor's job since he narrowly won the 1972 election against former State Rep. Jack Schramm, D-University City.

As a campaign memento, Phelps keeps an antique-style, brass alarm clock on his desk.

Phelps, whose main campaign theme was of making the lieutenant governor's job a fulltime one, has directed the state's disaster relief efforts and has been campaigning to bring new industry into the state. He recently attended a foreign trade seminar in Japan.

Phelps' critics have said the lieutenant governor's job does not require a fulltime effort. Past lieutenant governors have maintained their law practices while they held the office. Phelps, who sold his interest in a Kansas City law office when he was elected, says that if the lieutenant governor does his job right, it will be a fulltime job.

Phelps attracted attention June 15, the last day of the legislative session, when he was forcibly removed from the Senate chambers when he tried to preside.

Senate President Pro Tem William J. Cason, D-Clinton, retained the chair under rules adopted by all 34 senators at the outset of the legislative session.

The state constitution allows the Senate to set its rules, but Phelps, in a pending supreme court suit, maintains the rules cannot be established in conflict with the constitution, which says the lieutenant governor shall be ex-officio president of the senate.

"If the word president does not mean presiding officer, then what does it mean?" asked Phelps.

He maintains the Senate President Pro Tem is "what the name implies, a temporary president who presides in the absence of the lieutenant governor."

Thirty-four states have lieutenant governors who preside over the Senate, Phelps said. If he loses the court battle, Phelps said in an interview, he would be in favor of a vote to let the people decide, in a constitutional amendment, the lieutenant governor's legislative powers.

Several states allow their lieutenant governors to serve as ombusdmen, a liaison man between the public and government bureaucracy. Illinois and Colorado have lieutenant governors who have ombusdman duties. Hawaii and Nebraska have ombudsmen established by the legislature.

The term ombudsman, Phelps says, is Swedish in origin. Sweden adopted the plan in 1809.

Some of the things the ombudsman could do would be to receive complaints and make recommendations to the proper government agency. He could cut through red tape in finding the right person to answer a complaint.

He would have authority to investigate local government, courts or other elective offices. He could not investigate personnel decisions.

A bill to establish an office of ombudsman independent of the executive branch failed in the Senate after getting a preliminary approval.

As originally proposed, it would have cost $98,000 for a years operation, with the ombudsman getting $25,000, his assistant $20,000, four investigators at $6,000 apiece and three secretaries at $4,800 and a clerk at $5,000.

The sponor, Sen. William Waters, D-Liberty, said he didn't want the job to go to a politician and opposed giving Phelps the job.

Work to begin on East Malone

Work will begin Thursday on the resurfacing of East Malone Avenue, according to Bob Simpson, resident engineer of the State Highway Department.

The work will begin with the spreading of a layer of prime coat on the highway from about two blocks west of the Main Street intersection to the Route AA intersection in Miner. Simpson said the prime coat, which is basically oil, will present a driving hazard and he is asking drivers to be very cautious.

Missouri Petroleum Co. of St. Louis, which is doing the work, hopes to begin laying asphalt on Friday, according to Simpson. The work should be finished in two weeks, but it could be delayed if there is heavy weekend traffic he added;

About 11,000 pounds of asphalt are scheduled to be laid.

The project includes the widening of the highway and the installation of traffic signals at the Pine Street intersection. The entire project should be completed in mid-August, according to Simpson.

License renewed

The Miner Town Board reinstated the Ramada Inn's liquor license Tuesday night, but only after receiving promises from the management that major changes would be made in the handling of the motel's beverage sales.

The changes, which include altering the style of music and atmosphere in the cocktail lounge, are designed to upgrade the type of customers that utilize the lounge. The motel will be allowed to begin selling liquor again on Friday.

Board members told the Ramada management that the quality of the inn's customers has deteriorated, dumping law enforcement problems on the Miner Police Department and citizen complaints on the town board.

Charles Drury of Cape Girardeau, part owner of Ramada Inn, agreed with the board that the caliber of customers was deteriorating and that something had to be done.

Board members suggested changes, to which the Ramada management agreed, including brighter lights in the cocktail lounge, opening the drapes and keeping the doors open so the lounge would not be a dark secluded area.

Drury said the doors to the lounge could be removed and a grill installed. The primary concern, he said, was to be able to lock up the lounge when it is closed. Changing the lights and opening the drapes would be no problem at all, he added.

The loud rock bands will also go. Drury said he and other members of his firm have been considering dropping the bands in favor of other types of music, primarily because of loudness and because the bands are so expensive that the cocktail lounge doesn't show much of a profit. Drury said the motel could do better by cutting down the size of the lounge and turning it into a piano bar.

Drury also promised the bar would stop serving people who have had too much to drink. He said there should have been closer control in the past, and promised improvements would be made.

Board member Milton Sadler said he had seen petty gambling going on in the bar and that the bartender and waitress had made change for the gamblers. He added that inn manager Bud Jones had brought the gambling to a halt after it was brought to his attention. Drury said the management had been too lenient and that leniency was not good for the motel.

Board members said they were only expressing the comments of the residents of the area. Mayor L. F. Wheeler said that if the liquor by the drink referendum were to come up again, he didn't think it would pass.

Another change being considered at the Ramada is the removal of the old lounge and turning the area into a supper club, Drury said.

The board members said the motel would be closely watched, and if major changes are not made, the liquor license will be withdrawn.

Gov. Bond will meet in Malden with BRPC

MALDEN— Philip Shelton, executive director of the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission and the Bootheel Economic Development Council, reported today that Gov. Christopher S. Bond will be in Malden the morning of July 27 to attend an informal meeting with BRPC and BEDC members.

The purpose of the meeting is for the governor to acquaint the council and commission members with newly passed legislation.

An informal question and answer session will be held.

Billfold with $425 missing

Robley Martin of Ironton told police Tuesday that his billfold containing $425 was either lost or stolen Monday night at Holiday Inn, Highway 61 South.

Martin told police that he was drinking with three men he didn't know in the motel lounge. When they got up to leave, he said they knocked him down and went through his pockets. When he returned to his room, he said he discovered his wallet was missing.

Police said Martin had been drinking heavily and didn't know if the wallet was stolen or lost.

Miner licenses due July 1

MINER — Merchant licenses were due July 1, according to Town Clerk Betty McConnell.

Merchants have 60 days in which to obtain their license or face a $100 fine. There is a penalty of 10 per cent of the license fee per month until the license is purchased.

Only about 10 of 44 businesses in Miner have purchased licenses, Mrs. McConnell said.

School bricks late

The last slab of concrete was scheduled to be poured today at the new junior high school, contractor Bill Ryan told the Sikeston R-6 School District board of education Tuesday.

Ryan said the bricks could not be delivered until next week because bad weather in Mississippi had delayed the mining of clay from which they are made.

Ryan said his crews would begin working on the interior walls Thursday to keep construction going. He said if bricks did not arrive soon, they could be in trouble.

Bill Sikes, representing the SEMO Skills Center, said the Job placement rate for graduate of the center this year will be over 90 per cent.

The multi- occupation center had 257 trainees, the auto emissions courses had 1,180 trainees, all mechanics spread throughout the southern part of the state and the adult education course had 387 students.

The proposed program for 1973- 74 will have 273 trainees in the multi-occupation center and 400 trainees in the adult education center.

The board passed a resolution commending the late Leonard Overby for his service to the community and the school district.

Supt. Sam Harbin said two vacancies exist for bus drivers and that the board is especially interested in women bus drivers. He said they have a proven safety record and handle children more easily than men.

BROADCASTING AND THE FIRST AMENDMENT

Broadcasting, like politics, makes strange bedfellows. Consider the rare meeting of minds involving the Rev. Carl McIntire, the fundamentalist minister and leader of pro- war demonstrations, and many of the activists who have taken part in anti- war demonstrations. The issue on which they agree is that government regulation of broadcasting, chiefly through the "fairness doctrine," amounts to violation of the First Amendment's guarantees of free speech and press.

McIntire's position stems partially from self-interest. Three years ago, the Federal Communications Commission declined to renew the broadcasting license of WXUR, a radio station in Media, Pa., owned by mcIntire. In announcing its decision, the FCC held that the fundamentalist, right- wing views aired by WXUR were not properly balanced by other viewpoints. Thus, the station was adjudged in violation of the fairness doctrine. Undaunted, McIntire has threatened to set up "Radio Free America," a pirate radio ship anchored three miles off Cape May, N.J., and begin broadcasting to the East Coast on or about Thursday, July 19.

McIntire contends that the fairness doctrine is outmoded. With around 8,000 radio stations now on the air in the United States, he says, a wide variety of views on controversial issues is readily available to the public. He therefore feels that each station should be free to broadcast what it likes. Most of McIntire's fellow- broadcasters would not go quite that far, but they no doubt would welcome a less stringent interpretation of the fairness doctrine by the FCC.

Washington attorney Paul Porter, who served as FCC chairman during World War II, inclines to agree with McIntire. "When this gadget [the radio] was invented," he has observed (The Center Magazine, May/June 1973), "somebody had the foresight to attach a little thing that you can work with your finger and your thumb to turn it off or on. That guarantees consumer acceptance, and that ought to be the greatest deterrent to irresponsibility. So I say, Let's forget the old cliche that the airways belong to the public and stop using regulation as a club. Let's let the marketplace decide. That's where you'll get the best decisions, and also protect any vestiges that may be left of the First Amendment." One can easily imagine McIntire nodding vigorously in agreement.

Although the folks at home are not aware of it, there's speculation in Congress now that, instead of giving themselves a pay raise effective next year, the legislators may consider boosting their annual tax deduction of $3,000, allowed in both Washington as well as in their home districts for living expenses. Proponents of the plan stress it could be more palatable to the voters in election- year 1974 than a flat pay increase would be.

LIBRARIANS 'THROW THE BOOK'

Librarians, whom at least one marketing research group stereotypes as "timid, fearful and passive," are getting on their muscle about the Nixon administration's proposed cutbacks in library aid almost to zero in the fiscal 1974 budget.

It is "a severe blow to all concerned with the public's right to information," says the American Library Association.

Federal assistance to all types of libraries will end. Gone will be monies for library construction and training of librarians. Cutbacks in service and the elimination of many innovative programs made possible by federal funding seem inevitable.

To counteract this threat and to make libraries and librarians more visible to the public, the ALA is coordinating a campaign that seeks to generate citizen support for the many library programs now available.

Using the theme, "Dimming the Light on the People's Right to Know," the program will involve librarians throughout the nation, asking them to acquaint library patrons with what they have now and what they stand to lose.

The campaign will culminate with a symbolic dimming of the lights in libraries across the country briefly at noon on a date to be announced.

Now this is a worthy cause, one of the worthiest. The question is whether Americans value their libraries — or anything else — enough to pay for them.

It's easy to demand that Congress vote funds for this and that, and Congress is always willing to oblige. But the funds have to come from somewhere, either from taxes or from not spending available money on something else — or from printing cheaper dollars.

This is a bit of information the public also has a right to know.

MAO SENDS US HIS ACUPUNCTURE BEST

The recent "discovery" of China by America has progressed rapidly from Ping Pong to a presidential peek-in in Peking to acupuncture and now, in the latest diplomatic development, the announcement by that peripatetic peace- pursuer, Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, that "liaison" offices will be established in the capitals of both countries.

Such offices will fall just this side of official recognition of each government by the other.

In April, Anchor Press will publish "The People's Comic Book," seven stories in comic book form popular in China. With translated captions, the cartoons will be exact reproductions of Chinese comics.

In the people-to- people sphere, China is now sending over 10,000 acupuncture teaching kits as "contributions to the medical and health protection of the American people, so as to enhance the friendship between the Chinese and American people."

The kits, which are being marketed by Sobin Chemicals, Inc., of Boston, feature a 22-inch- high plastic human figure showing the 361 acupuncture points used by Chinese physicians for anesthesia and therapy and will be offered for sale to U. S. physicians, dentists, hospitals, and accredited researchers interested in this ancient Chinese art.

The kit, incidentally, is endorsed by both the Shanghai Research Institute of Traditional Chinese Medicine and the Nanking College of Traditional Chinese Medicine.

The accent on the traditional aspects of one of the first Chinese products to be imported into this country in the current era of good feeling suggests that the new China is not all that different from the old. A 4,000- year - old civilization does not change drastically in one generation.

The Asia Information Office, located in Hong Kong, has in fact made an interesting list of comparisons between the "then" and the "now" of China.

Then: The government functioned by recruiting men of talent and ability.

Now: A political elite is running the modern Chinese show.

Then: A strong secular faith in Confucianism worked its way into every corner of Chinese thinking and institutional life.

Now: Mao Tse-tung's "thoughts" are the all-powerful, all-prevading secular faith of modern China.

Then: A frowning on heterodoxy and improper conduct.

Now: A demand for an orthodox Marxist lifestyle and constant guarding against backsliding and "revisionism."

Then: Law was the tool to regulate society and the state; stress was on social order, not individual rights.

Now: Ditto.

Then: The ruler was expected to be both hero and wiseman.

Now: Mao, the scourge of the foreign imperialists, is "Our Teacher." His wisdom is "boundless."

Then: Never any comfortable place for a loyal opposition.

Now: Ask Lin Piao and Liu Shao-chi about this one.

In some fundamental ways, however, the new order in China is radically different from the old.

For instance, Confucius stressed harmony, between men and between man and nature. Mao's favorite noun is "struggle."

Fortunately for the world, as China begins to emerge into it, struggle does not necessarily imply armed conflict.

Our Personal Stake

Challenging an audience of nearly a thousand business leaders at a recent meeting of the National Association of Manufacturers, Walter E. Hoadley said: "We'd better have more new ideas soon to demonstrate the direct personal stake each American has in profits and how that same individual benefits."

Mr. Hoadley, who is chief economist of the Bank of America, pointed out that savings, insurance, personal holdings and other investments are widely channeled into jobs, business and other productive activities, but only a few people know it.

This challenge is well-timed; every effort should be made to eliminate the paradox of public confidence in business being at a new low, with young people turning away from business careers, in the midst of what Mr. Hoadley calls "the greatest economic progress in history." The public is discerning of puffery, however, and businessmen should not hesitate to air their differences and talk should be in proportion to action.

His points are well taken. Not many of us know enough about what motivates our local businessmen and our larger employers. In many instances they could be more willing to learn and be convinced. Here, and elsewhere around the country, the time seems to have come for businessmen and the community to get together and "talk it over."

Certainly any objective oberver of today's burgeoning economy would conclude that business must be doing many thing extremely well. We all should know more then we do about it.

SURVEY SAYS INDUSTRY IS TOWN'S NO. 1 NEED

The need for new industry is the most important problem facing small communities, according to a survey conducted by the American Bankers Association, Washington, D. C.

In the survey of 12,500 smaller banks (those with resources of less than $50 million) nearly 75 per cent of the respondents rated new industry as the number one community need. And 80 per cent of the bankers said they are involved in trying to foster new industry for their towns.

"For each 100 people employed by industries in our community, retail trade goes up $1.3 million, personal income goes up $2.9 million," say Thomas R. Smith, chairman of the ABA's Agricultural and Community Banker Division, and president of the First National Bank, Perry, Iowa. "It also means five new retail businesses," he said.

THE BIG LOSERS

That magic ingredient of progress -- incentive -- is something that most politicians and a large segment of the public either will not or cannot understand. In the pharmaceutical industry, mounting regulations are gradually killing the incentive to spend the time and effort that it takes to produce new lifesaving medical compounds.

Patent laws which have been a stimulant to drug research are once again under attack. A measure was proposed in Congress which apparently would water down the patent laws. This proposed public health price protection act could require mandatory licensing of drug patents, permitting all drug companies to manufacture the products in question, when: "the average price to the consumer of the drug is higher (1) than five times the direct cost of manufacture or else higher than the average price of such drug to the consumer in any foreign country; and (2) that the annual sales of the drug have been more than $1 million for three or more years; and (3) that the existence of a patent is a substantial contributing factor to the high price of the drugs."

One pharmaceutical company – a leader in the development of important prescription pharmaceuticals -- in pointing to the inaccuracy of figures upon which the proposals to license drug patents is based, noted that "market conditions affecting the prices of products -- whether pharmaceutical or other goods -- differ from one marketplace to another ... Major influences on prices include (variations in) wage rates, distribution costs, price and wage controls, taxes, import duties, revaluations of currency, and sources of raw materials."

Political animosity to incentives and the right to earn a profit is a killer of progress. It saps the strength of essential enterprises, and the public is the primary loser.

NEW CHAIRMAN OF NAM PLEDGES TO SEEK HARMONY

The new head of the National Association of Manufacturers believes businessmen "must work together with government and organized labor in harmony, if we are to achieve the highest standard of living. We are in this thing together, all of us. We have noting to consume that we have not first produced."

In accepting the office of 1973 chairman of the board of the National Association Manufacturers, Burt F. Raynes, chairman, Rohr Industries, Inc., Chula Vista, Calif., said that, "In today's complex and specialized society, virtually all of the necessities of life are contained in the outpouring of our mills and factories. There is hardly a thing that you, as individuals, you and I, use in our daily life that does not come from a factory- your clothes, your means of transportation, your food, your housing."

Noting that the contribution of business to our way of life is "very imperfectly understood" by the general public, by educators and by members of government. Mr. Raynes said that NAM's goal "must be to correct these misunderstandings."

"I have appointments with major labor leaders, and I hope to find areas of agreement," Mr. Raynes added. "I believe that there are areas that we can agree on. I hope to minimize areas of disagreement."

"Another major area of concern for business and industry, as we look around the world at other countries particularly, is the takeover or the nationalization of various segments of industry," he observed.

NAM is compiling data which show that monopolistic, bureaucratic, nationalized industry is not nearly as efficient as competitive free enterprise, he said, and plans to disseminate this information broadly to all walks of life including educators, young people, and the halls of Congress.

GAS STATION WORKERS URGED TO CHECK TIRES

The success or failure of a new government- sponsored program to aid consumers by promoting proper tire inflation depends to a great extent on the cooperation of service station personnel, a tire industry spokesman says.

An alert station attendant can often point out that low air pressure is causing extra tread wear near the sidewalls long before the motorists feels or notices it.

The same holds true when overinflation is causing more wear in the center of the tread.

STRONG DEFENSE STILL NEEDED

Some influential people in government and the media are arguing that the new "era of negotiations" into which the U.S. is entering with communist countries means that we should sharply reduce our defense capability. But that would be a serious and dangerous mistake.

In recent testimony before the Senate Appropriations Committee, Admiral Moorer called attention to the significant increases in Soviet armed might which have occurred in recent months.

The Kremlin is currently developing three new intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs), one of which has an onboard computer for a multiple warhead re- entry vehicle. The Soviets are also deploying the 4,000- mile-range SS- N- 8 missile, which is equipped with Stellar- Inertial guidance. These missiles, when launched from submarines, could destroy our land based Minuteman ICBMs.

Nor have the Soviets neglected their conventional forces. They have modernized their bomber force, their anti-aircraft interceptors and their attack- submarine fleet.

While all this is happening, the U.S. defense budget comprises the smallest percentage of the overall federal budget since the 1949-1950 fiscal year.

The communists are using negotiations as a cover for increasing their own military strength while luring the U.S. into a weakened defense position. Our government must not be lulled into a false sense of security, but must realize the importance of negotiating from a position of strength.

If the SALT talks in Geneva and the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Helsinki are not to do more harm than good, the U.S. must not surrender its ability to defend itself while permitting its enemy to continue to increase its military power. HLH

NEW DELHI (AP) — Indian red tape is as tangled as the human web that administers it. On that stifling afternoon in the police station, it was up to its usual mischief.

The old car had wheezed dead beside the U.S. Embassy, and the police towed it in. Diplomats don't like eyesores cluttering their streets.

"All you have to do is to go to the magistrates and get a release order," the police lieutenant said. "You will have your car in 30 minutes."

No chance.

Magistrate Balbir Singh, his head tightly swathed in a yellow turban, glanced over the petition for release and said: "Get a report from the police. I can't release the car unless I know all about it."

The report—four handwritten lines on the bottom of the petition—required only 45 minutes.

Back to the magistrate, who threw the petition in the direction of his typist for the release order, which was dutifully typed on the back and initialled by Singh.

Then back to the police station.

"But you don't have the receipt for the crane charge," another lieutenant said.

The receipt, it was said, must come from the police barracks, where there was another half-hour wait while a man took the 30 rupees—$4—somewhere for the duly signed receipt.

Back to the police station.

The paperwork seemed in order, said the ranking policeman on duty, but "Have they checked the motor number and the chassis number?" he asked. A 15-minute search failed to locate the chassis number, but the temperature was 103 degrees Fahrenheit and the officer said, "I guess it's right."

Then came the final crisis: Balbir Singh, the fill-in judge, had signed the document instead of Jacob Ali, the usual magistrate for that station. It was decided that the stationhouse officer—the station's top man—must pass on the validity of the unknown initials.

A grilling by the stationhouse officer followed. Appeased, the officer surrendered the car— after the petitioner wrote himself permission to take custody of the vehicle, which was registered in his company's name.

The term "red tape" was born in British India, when documents of interest to the crown were wrapped in red ribbon, or tape. The tradition of bureaucratic obfuscation that went with the empire survives, embellished, in free India.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Burglarized Anti-War Vets Suspect Watergate Tactics

WASHINGTON — The anti-war veterans, high on the White House "enemies" list, were mysteriously burglarized twice at a time when the Watergate break-in teams were their busiest.

The victims of the burglaries were the rambunctious Vietnam Veterans Against the War, who had incensed the Nixon Administration with their militant protests. Their leaders face trial soon on charges of plotting to disrupt the 1972 Republican convention in Miami.

The anti- war veterans came under close FBI scrutiny in 1970. FBI agent Claude Meadow, one of the probers, confided to a Nixon youth worker that orders were out to "nail" the leaders. The Nixon workers, Mike Carr, now an aide to Sen. Ed Gurney, R-Fla., confirmed that he "got the impression" from talking to the FBI agent that "pressure was being put on to nail the radical vets." Meadow refused comment.

By Fall of 1971, the obstreperous vets, with ex-Marine sergeant Scott Camil in the forefront, were making headlines. In one protest, Camil scattered the nine medals he earned in Vietnam over the White House lawn.

Thanksgiving Break-In

Not long afterward, on Thanksgiving Day, 1971, someone broke into Camil's home which doubles as Vets Headquarters, according to Gainesville police records. Three locks were cut to get into his bedroom closet.

Camil told the police nothing was missing from the break-in, but later, he told us in a signed statement: "I checked my desk and found that my membership lists for the regions were gone, also testimony sheets from the Vets, concerning what they did and saw in Vietnam. Also missing were background questionnaires that are filled out by the membership."

Less than a month later, Gainesville police records show the anti-war veterans' headquarters were hit again. This time, four of their rifles were stolen from a rack.

Then Camil was suddenly engulfed in a flood of state and Federal criminal charges. Florida charged him with kidnapping and dope violations. The Federal government charged him with conspiring to wreck the GOP convention and possession of explosives.

Lawyer's Office Burglarized

Camil retained an activist lawyer, Carol Scott. In July, 1972, her office, too, was burglarized and her Camil files stolen. To compound the mystery, the FBI has now admitted it possessed a documentary film stolen recently from a Jacksonville, Fla., Vietnam Veteran leader.

The raft of burglaries against the Vets are suspiciously like the break-ins at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist in 1971 and the two Watergate break-ins of 1972, all now admitted by members of the White House burglary teams.

Lawyers for Howard Hunt, the mastermind of the Watergate and Ellsberg psychiatrist break-ins, told us Hunt "emphatically and unequivocally denies involvement in the Vietnam Vets break-in."

And President Nixon himself denied on May 22 that his plan to permit break-ins on radical groups had ever been put into operation.

Billy Graham's Blessing: As evidence that the Nixon Administration is determined to avoid any more scandals, the new general counsel for the Securities and Exchange Commission was recommended and vouched for by the President's spiritual adviser, evangelist Billy Graham.

Indeed, the four SEC commissioners were so confident of the new general counsel's integrity that they took the highly unusual step of accepting him without so much as an interview.

He is Lawrence Nerheim, whose Minneapolis law firm has represented Billy Graham's multi-million- dollar religious empire for 12 years. Nerheim has also held key posts in the Graham organization.

With the evangelist's blessing as his main credential, Nerheim was interviewed by SEC Chairman Bradford Cook shortly before the embattled Cook resigned under fire. He had been accused of meddling in the government's case against millionaire financier Robert Vesco.

Despite the cloud over his departure, Cook's word apparently still carried weight inside SEC. The senior commissioner, Hugh Owens, has recounted the circumstances surrounding Nerheim's appointment in an internal memorandum.

"On Friday, May 18, 1973, two days after (Cook's) resignation," wrote Owens, Cook called him about the Nerheim appointment. "Mr. Cook told me ... that he had had a personal interview with Mr. Nerheim and had been very much impressed by his demeanor in general and his knowledge of the securities laws and the workings and activities of this Commission."

Owens then contacted his three fellow commissioners by telephone and found they were "all in agreement, individually and collectively, that Mr. Nerheim was an eminently qualified man ..."

Commissioner Owens was aware, he wrote, "that the White House personnel office had given its approval to the appointment." Lawrence Nerheim, in other words, waltzed into the general counsel's office on the word of Billy Graham and Bradford Cook.

Footnote: Nerheim's former law firm represents some of the industrial giants, which are regulated by the SEC. They include Firestone Tire and Rubber, General Motors, Union Carbide, Westinghouse and Shell Oil. Nerheim himself organized a life insurance company, which was eventually absorbed by ITT.

Cotton acreage below 72 season

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of farm acres planted with cotton is 6 per cent below the 1972 season but 6 per cent above 1971, the Agriculture Department's Crop Reporting Service said.

Acreage was off sharply in the southeast and the Mississippi Delta, the report said Tuesday, but growers in Texas and the Western States have increased plantings.

The total acreage planted to cotton is 13.1 million acres, the board said. The agency's first estimate of harvest and expected production for cotton will be released Aug. 9.

Cool, wet weather during the planting season in the Southeast delayed planting and caused problems in obtaining good stands for the cotton plants the board said.

Flooding in fields that dried too late for planting in the Delta states contributed to cotton acreage there being 18 per cent below last year. In the Southeast, acreage is 10 per cent below 1972.

By states, the board gave these upland cotton acreage estimates and their relation to 1972 plantings. They included:

Arson suspected in Bloomfield fire

BLOOMFIELD — Investigating officials have definitely established arson as the cause of a fire that could have threatened a large portion of the downtown area but was fortunately limited to the building in which it was set.

The blaze occurred shortly after midnight Saturday in a vacant building on Prairie Street that formerly housed Jesse's Cafe. However, quick reaction by the Bloomfield Volunteer Fire Department limited the fire to the area in which it was set.

A spokesman for the fire department said the blaze had started in two areas of the building and this immediately aroused suspicions of arson.

Sikeston Fire Chief Larry Linnemeyer and a St. Louis area fire chief, August Liliensiek, were called in to assist with the investigations by the local force and they, too, said arson caused the blaze.

Investigations turned up a gallon jug of gasoline under the basement steps of the building and other bits of evidence supporting their claims, firemen report.

Following the investigation, the Bloomfield fire department asked the sheriff's office to request assistance from the fire marshall's office in Jefferson City.

The special investigators were in Bloomfield Monday and their conclusions also supported the arson theory.

Authorities are conducting an intensive investigation to try and determine the arsonist.

Since the fire, local residents have been high in their praise of the work of the fire department for keeping the blaze from spreading to nearby businesses.

Firemen arrived on the scene shortly after a patrolling deputy reported smoke coming from the building.

Though the blaze was contained within the building, cafe equipment still in the structure and the interior of the building itself received extensive damage.

The building is owned by Mrs. Therma Leggett of Bloomfield and was under lease to the law firm of Briney, Welborn, and Spain who planned to move their law offices there.

6 divorces granted

NEW MADRID— Six divorces were granted Tuesday in Circuit Court by Judge William L. Ragland.

Mildred Cain of Parma received a divorce and custody of one child in her suit against DeWalter Cain.

A property settlement was filed and approved and a divorce granted Margaret Joyce Slough of Marston against Donald Ford Slough.

Betty J. Dockins of Gideon was divorced from Ronald G. Dockins after a property settlement and separation agreement was filed and approved.

Bertha Belle Truett of Risco was granted a divorce on her cross bill against Bobby Joe Truett. A property settlement and separation agreement was filed and approved.

Harold S. Miller received a divorce and custody of two children from Linda Kay Miller.

Jewell Eveline Lecroy of Gideon was divorced from Luther Thomas Lecroy and restored to her miaden name of Loughary.

Collis and Martha Maltbia were granted a quiet title decree covering Lot 6 in Block F in Latham's Addition to the city of New Madrid against George Smith and Annie Smith and others.

MFA Oil Co. received quiet title decree covering Irene Street from Route D west to city limits of Lilbourn, being part of Irene Street in Blocks 11 and 12 between Block 10 and part of Block 13, and that part of Van Buren Street from Route D south to the north line of Travis Street between Blocks 10 and 11 and between part of Blocks 12 and 13 and the alleys between the north halves and south halves of Blocks 10, 11 and 12 in Baden's addition to the city of Lilbourn.

The suit was filed against all taxpayers, property owners, residents and citizens of Lilbourn and James M. Baughman as representative.

Scott City Bank and Trust Co. was awarded $351.45 judgment with eight per cent interest and costs against George and Deborah Poley of New Madrid. The judgment was ordered to be a special lien on an automobile.

Judge Ragland made an order granting a motion for summary judgment in favor of Lumber Sales Inc. of Pine Bluff, Ark. and dismissed petition of Asa Dowdy seeking $9,990.99 judgment for malicious prosecution. The case had been transferred to New Madrid County on a change of venue from Stoddard County.

A decision of the Industrial Commission of Missouri was affirmed by Judge Ragland in an appeal filed by Geneva DeWitt of Sikeston Route Three. The commission had ruled that Mrs. DeWitt had been overpaid $214 in unemployment insurance benefits for a period from Sept. 27, 1970 to Dec. 26, 1970.

Judge Ragland Monday approved termination of appointment of Elgie Price as New Madrid County deputy sheriff, effective June 30.

4 minors placed on probation

NEW MADRID — Twenty- four misdemeanor charges were heard and fines imposed in Magistrate Court by Judge Leo Hedgepeth.

Four minors, Michael Anthony Beck, Joseph Leon Gilkey, Bryan Earl Jones Jr. and Anthony Ray Murphy, each charged with illegal possession of beer, were fined $65 each, given six-month suspended jail sentence and placed on probation for six months.

John Henry Eaves was levied $75 fine on charge of illegal possession of intoxicating beer. He was given a six- month jail sentence and was placed on probation for six months. Charles Nathen Eaves drew the same fine and punishment on charge of supplying intoxicating beverages to minors.

Ronnie Johnson and Nettie Kimbrough, charged with malicious destruction of property by knocking out windows and tearing siding off an E. B. Gee Land Co. farm house, were fined $76, given 30 days in jail and placed on probation.

James Chappell paid $40 fine on peace disturbance charge.

Tommy Wayne Elliott was assessed $40 fine on a charge of failure to exercise care while operating a motor vehicle. Clyde Clinton Weathers and Jimmy Franklin Keller each were fined $20 on similar charges.

Doyle Randolph Crafton forfeited $35 bond on careless and imprudent driving charge. Billy Joe Douglas was fined $30, Teddy Dewayne Melton $25 and Dennis Dave Stafford $20 on careless and imprudent driving charges.

Solomon Lee Anderson was fined $25 on charges of operating a vehicle without an operator license and without a vehicle license.

On charges of driving without an operator license, $20 fines were levied against Rosa Lee Whitmore, John Henry Williams, Jerry Lee Higgins and Wilber Lee Henderson.

Other cases resulting in $20 fines:

Charles Melford Hannah, unauthorized operator; Autry Sims Sr., speeding; Earl Franklin Smelser, operating vehicle with license invalidated for motorcycle; and Lavern Frazier, operating improperly registered vehicle.

A replevin suit was dismissed with prejudice by Saveway Oil Co. against Johnny and Novella Martin following settlement.

Sheriff's service was returned unable to locate in this county in a suit on a note filed by Peoples Bank-Marycrest against James A. Martin.

Ann Landers

Children need honest answers

Dear Ann Landers: Why is it that when you tell someone you are a barmaid they look at you as if you had said, "I am a prostitute"? I enjoy my job very much, get $3 an hour base pay and work from 40 to 48 hours a week. I average anywhere from $75 to $100 a week in tips.

Of course there are drawbacks. I'm on my feet eight hours at a stretch and I must work every night, including holidays. I get no fringe benefits such as vacation pay and insurance. I have to put up with a lot of drunks, block their passes tactfully (so they don't get mad), listen to their troubles and settle their dumb arguments.

I was educated in Europe, speak three languages fluently, type, take dictation and can use office equipment. But when I held a so- called "respectable" job, I couldn't clear more than $90 a week after deductions. This meant I had to share an apartment, drive an old car and wear tacky clothes.

Now I live in a beautiful duplex--- alone--- drive a new car, have a good wardrobe, give generously to charity and help support my widowed mother. My only problem, Ann, is this: What do I say to people who give me the fish- eye when I tell them I'm a barmaid?--- Unduly Sensitive

Dear Un: Why say anything? Simply return the fish- eye and go on counting your tip money, honey.

Dear Ann Landers: Our six- year- old son is a bright child and extremely inquisitive. Billy has a great love for all living things. He wants to know about animals, insects and flowers--- how they reproduce themselves and what makes them grow. He has been told that all living things come from seeds. Billy has seen pregnant women and he knows that babies' lives begin with a seed from the daddy and until they are ready to be born they will be carred in the mommy's tummy.

Recently he pinned me down and I had to tell him exactly how a new baby gets out of the mommy's tummy. He seemed perfectly satisfied and the subject hasn't come up since.

Last night I casually mentioned to my husband that Billy has an unusually good understanding of the life processes. When I told him about our recent conversation he became madder than I've ever seen him. He called me an idiot for going into so much detail. According to my husband, there is no need to describe human reporduction until a child is 12 years old. He says there is so much sex talk around these days that kids think about nothing else. He believes parents should stay with the seed story as long as possible. He claims too much information encourages "experimentation and investigation." We have two younger children and I need to know if he is right. Thanks, Ann.--- S.O.S.

Dear S.O.S.: He is wrong. A child's questions should always be answered honestly. If your husband thinks he can stick with the seed story until a youngster is 12, I have a jolt for him.

All children "experiment and investigate," and when they start to school they invariably trade information. It's far healtheir for a child to get the facts at home, from a parent, BEFORE he goes to school and picks up bits and pieces from the kiddie underground.

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientists believe the house mouse originated in Asia and spread from there to Europe. "Mouse" comes from an old Sanskrit word meaning "thief." Ships probably brought the house mice to America over 200 years ago.

How a roach can help you fix your faucet.

Roaches have never really done much for people. Except infest their homes and generally become a nuisance.

But now, for a change, roaches can help you. Because with every free pest control analysis and recommendation, Terminix is giving away a book called H.E.L.P. — the Home Emergency Ladies' Pal.

It contains over 150 pages of easy-to-understand instructions and drawings to help you handle a whole range of household emergencies. Like a leaky faucet. A burnt-out fuse. Or a stopped-up toilet.

Both the book and the pest analysis and recommendation are free with no obligation. Just call Terminix.

Bell City FHA girls assist with summer school

By JUDY STRICKLIN

BELL CITY-- Twenty-four girls from Bell City High School are participating in a summer Future Homemakers of America volunteer project by preparing snacks for summer school students in grades 1 through 6.

Four girls work from 8 to 10 a.m. each day in the high school's cafeteria making such things as homemade cookies and cakes, tuna salad and peanut butter and jelly sandwiches and pudding. Lunchmeat and fruit cups are the two easiest things the girls prepare. Mrs. Helon Myrick, home economics teacher for the school and FHA advisor, plans the menus and oversees the work.

Barbara Abner, a senoir, said she volunteered for the project to "have something to do and to get points which enable us (the girls) to attend the national FHA conference". Each girls helps in preparing the snack and in the clean- up.

"The girls work an average of two or three days per week and get 10 points for each hour worked. Of course, there are those who only work one day a week, but some have been in here almost everyday, " Miss Abner said.

Pam Hasty, another senior, said, "Well, we knew there was going to be summer school for six weeks and since a lot of us didn't have anything to do, we just volunteered to help out in the food department. We get to eat some of the food and experiment with the punch and cookies, so we learn a little, too.

"Besides," she added, "if I wasn't here, I'd probably be at home bored stiff.

"I suppose I'd be sitting at home like Pam if I didn't help out", added Ila Scherffius, a sophomore, "and I like working with kids."

Lynn Jeffress, a junior, and Millie Painton, a sophomore, both agreed they liked to help out because "it keeps us out of the fields and off the tractor for awhile." Miss Jeffress works in the fields on her father's farm and mostly enjoyed the FHA work for diversity. It also gives her a chance to see some of her classmates.

Miss Painton drives a tractor for her father and said "When Mrs. Myrick called me to help out, I accepted."

Both girls plan to pursue a college education. Miss Jeffress hopes to become a nurse, and Miss Painton will major in art. For the time being, all of the girls are content to be busy for the summer and visit with friends daily.

Mrs. Myrick stated that she appreciates what the girls are doing and said the summer students look up to the girls and admire them for using their summer vacation time for their benefit.

The children attend classes from 8:15 to 11:30 a.m. There are 54 enrolled in the session, according to Jerry Hatley, summer school coordinator, and an average of 45 attend each day.

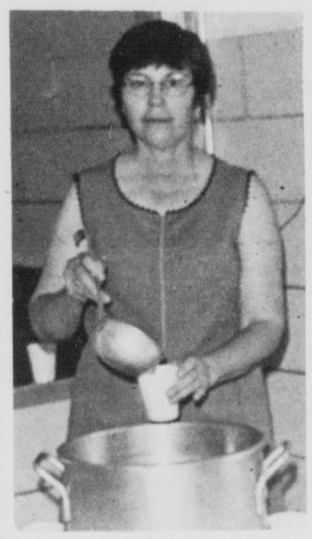

"The girls don't really mind the clean- up, and I really believe they enjoy the change of a regularly dull summer. There are only three weeks left of the summer school, including this week, and things have gone pretty well.

"Of course, in their spare time the girls prepare for the next day and clean- up as they go. So they're never idle, and I think that's what they come for anyway," he said.

Distributing sandwiches

Lynn Jeffress, left, makes small talk about her summer vacation to Ila Scherffius as they distribute homemade tuna salad sandwiches to summer school students' plates. The salad is made early and chilled until almost time for the children's snack break.

Punch references

Mrs. Helon Myrick, home economics teacher at Bell City High School and FHA counselor for the girls working in the cafeteria during summer school, enjoys a glass of punch after the students have resumed classes.

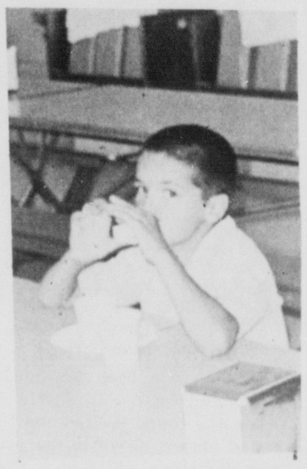

Girls serve punch

Pam Hasty, left, and Barbara Abner, both Future Homemakers of America members at Bell City High School, serve punch to summer school students each morning of the session. The girls make the punch in the morning and "sort of experiment to get what we want ... something different everyday," according to Miss Abner.

First served youths

These two boys were two of the first students served Monday in the cafeteria at Bell City High School for summer school snacks. The children received the snacks at 10 a.m. during their morning of "school". Mike Dockins, front, and Ivan Coleman hurried to be first in line.

Lone eater

Ivan Coleman, one of the first students in line to receive a plate, is shown heartily enjoying his mid-morning snack at Bell City High School during the summer school session. Most of the children had finished their sandwich and fruit cup and gone outside to play while he finished off the punch.

Foster parents to meet

ST. LOUIS — A meeting to form a state foster parent association is being planned for July 21 at Ramada Inn, 9636 Natural Bridge, by foster parents and agency personnel from Kansas City and St. Louis organizations.

The association would work in cooperation with child welfare agencies for the purpose of better foster child care; better education for foster parents; better understanding of the roles of foster families, natural parents and social workers; and a better way of determining the value of services rendered by the foster family for the foster child.

Any foster parents involved in child care is welcome to attend the meeting which will begin at 10 a.m.

BIRTHS

BACKFISCH — Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Backfisch of Illmo are parents of a son born Thursday at 2:16 p.m. in Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau. The child weighed seven pounds six ounces and has been named David Harold. He is the third child, second son.

Mrs. Backfisch is the former Brenda Jenkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Urhahn of Benton. Backfisch is employed by Scott City Ready Mix Co. and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Backfisch of Illmo.

GARLAND — Mr. and Mrs. David Garland of Jackson are parents of their first child, a daughter born Thursday at 7:53 a.m. at Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau. The child has been named Lori Michelle and weighed eight pounds seven ounces at birth.

Mrs. Garland is the former Delores Jean McCarty. Garland is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Garland of Chaffee and is employed by Ludlow Corp.

Community Calendar

THURSDAY

A well baby clinic will be held at the Morehouse Delmo community center from 9 a.m. to noon for pre- school children. A doctor will be on hand to give free shots and physical examinations. For appointment, phone 667-5867 or 471-8767.

Resignation urged by Cape Church

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The executive board of the Missouri Baptist Convention was urged Thursday to get a new executive secretary because of alleged mismangement of church funds.

As tempers flared between critics and supporters of Dr. Earl O. Harding, executive secretary the past 15 years, he lay in a bed in the intensive care unit at St. Mary's Hospital.

It was reported to the convention that Harding, 61, had suffered a heart attack Monday evening. But his wife discounted this later, saying "the doctor said he was pretty sure that he did not have a heart attack."

Harding did have a heart attack 10 years ago, his wife said. Doctors decided to keep him under observation after he reported feeling "very tired," Mrs. Harding said.

Harding has been under fire since an audit report for 1971 showed more than $53,000 in expenditures that were unaccounted for. On Monday he said he was paying back $40,000 of $62,500 in housing money advanced in 1968 by the convention's 13-member executive committee.

He said he realized some leaders of the 600,000-member church did not approve of the advance in his $5,000-a-year housing allowance and he secured a private loan for his house. He draws a yearly salary of $25,000.

Dr. Tom Anderson, a lay member of the church and mayor of Columbia, said the repayment of the housing allowance, which had not been approved by the executive board, "is not going to make everything okay."

Anderson said Harding had transferred money from auditable accounts to inauditable accounts. Other criticis have asked for the 1972 audit, which has not yet been given to the executive board.

The First Baptist Church of Cape Girardeau sent a letter to the board Tuesday asking it to seriously considering asking for Harding's resignation.

Signed by Dr. W. T. Holland, the pastor, the letter was said to have been approved unanimously by about 50 persons who attended a special meeting to discuss the handling of finances by the baptist convention.

The letter, which was not acted upon by the board, complained that the executive secretary and some members of the executive committee have not responded properly to queries about the financial controversy and there "appears to be an effort to keep this information even from the executive board."

The Cape Girardeau church also complained that the convention's publication "word and way," has been biased in reporting the controversy and refuses to print anything critical of Harding.

A special audit report is being prepared for 1970-72 by the Springfield firm of Baird, Kurtz and Dobson, Supporters of Harding said no action should be taken until the audit is received.

3 Dunklin banks to get deposit funds

KENNETT— Three Dunklin County banks will receive $425,000 from the first statewide allocation of funds under the new Missouri Model for the Investment of Inactive State Funds, state Treasurer James Spainhower announced Tuesday.

The Dunklin County banks and their allocations include Kennett National Bank, $130,000; Malden State Bank, $205,000; and State Bank of Campbell, $90,000.

Spainhower stated the total amount distributed under the first allocation is $50 million. Every bank in the state was given an opportunity to apply for the funds, the state official said.

Although about $42 million of the first $50 million invested will earn for the state the current market rate of interest of about seven per cent, Spainhower explained that approximately $8 million cannot earn more than five per cent because federal regulations set this ceiling for those banks with less than $100,000 state money on deposit.

The distribution is based on a formula which returns an amount to each county proportional to the amount paid by that county in state sales and income tax. According to Spainhower, this formula standardizes the requirements which must be met by banks before they can be selected for the deposit of these general funds.

When the amount designated for a county has been determined, applications from the banks within that county are checked against the requirements of the new formula and the amount available for deposit with each bank is checked. Spainhower noted that "any bank in the county that reflects a community involvement by maintaining a loan deposit ration of at least 50 per cent will receive its share of the money, providing it chooses to accept the deposit at the maximum rate of interest allowed by law."

Spainhower did not have the total amount designated for Dunklin County immediately available.

The $50 million in state funds for this allocation reflects the state Treasurer's new policy of keeping the state's money within Missouri whenever possible. Much of the money is from matured U.S. Treasury bills purchased prior to legislation, introduced at Spainhower's request, which requires banks to pay Missouri the market rate of interest whenever federal regulations permit.

"Without this new statute," Spainhower said, "I would have been faced with the rather unattractive option of sending the money out of state for U.S. Treasury bills or investing it in Missouri at a rate much lower than we will now receive."

RSVP grant awarded to E. Prairie

EAST PRAIRIE — ACTION, the citizens service corps, has awarded $32,622 to the East Prairie Chamber of Commerce to start a Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP).

The grant was announced in Washington D. C. today by ACTION Director Mike Balzano.

RSVP is a national program to develop significant volunteer service in local communities for men and women age 60 and over.

The one- year grant will enable the group to start an RSVP in Mississippi County, placing 100 Senior Volunteers in service the first year, and as many as 300 in the next five.

Betty Johnson is program director of the Chamber of Commerce.

The RSVP will place volunteers with cooperating public and private social service agencies throughout the county. Senior Volunteers may serve with a library, senior citizens groups and city offices.

Former Matthews woman wins first place in contest

OROVILLE, Calif. —Mrs. Judy Tucker, an instructor from an Oroville beauty school and a former resident of Matthews, Mo., recently took a few students to compete against Reno, Nev., beauticians in a hair- styling contest at the Nugget in Reno.

Mrs. Tucker chose a hair style for evening wear and won first place, a trophy and $100. One of the Oroville students won third place with a day-time style.

This was the first time anyone from the northern part of California had won in competition with the state of Nevada.

While in Reno, Mrs. Tucker and students stayed with her mother, Mrs. Martha Trail Roderick, in her summer home near Reno and Lake Tahoe.

Mrs. Tucker went to school in Matthews and at one time was employed by Luber's Beauty School in Sikeston, Mo.

3 get prison terms

CARUTHERSVILLE — Pemiscot County Circuit Court Judge William Ragland sentenced three men to the State Department of Corrections to serve terms after they pleaded guilty to robbery charges. The three are Robert Edward Hardin, 24, of Toledo, Ohio, David Palmer, 26, of Champaign, Ill., and Brian Ralph Dennis, 30, of Van Nuys, Calif.

Hardin was charged with armed robbery in the second degree in connection with the May 8 attempt to rob the Martin Oil Station in Steele. Nothing was taken as the owner of the station, Herbert Pugh, resisted the robbery attempt and was struck on the head. Hardin then fled the scene.

Ragland sentenced Hardin to serve five years in the state penitentiary.

Palmer was sentenced to five years in jail on a first degree robbery charge and two years on an escape charge. The sentences are to run consecutively.

Palmer was charged with the armed robbery of the Phillips 66 Service Station on the west edge of Hayti July 24, 1972. On that day at 5:15 p.m., Palmer and three other men robbed the station of about $360 after tying up the attendant. The four men were apprehended shortly after the robbery by the Missouri State Highway Patrol and Pemiscot County sheriff's officers following a speed chase.

Palmer escaped from the Pemiscot County jail Sept. 2, 1972, and was returned from Florida earlier this year.

A first degree robbery charge against Dennis was the result of the Pender Jewelry Store robbery in Steele Oct. 14, 1972. Approximately $17,000 in jewelry was taken. Dennis was sentenced to 20 years in jail.

In Magistrate Court before Judge Jerry Stillman, Marty Roberts waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to Circuit Court on a charge of manslaughter after Prosecuting Attorney Art Stephenson reduced the charge to manslaughter from second degree murder.

The charge stems from incident June 10 at the south end of the county when Roberts' grandfather, Elbert Holt, was fatally stabbed with a knife. Holt died June 16. Roberts is charged with assaulting his grandfather.

Mishap injures 2

PERRYVILLE-- Two Perryville residents were injured early today when their car went out of control, ran off the road and struck a culvert on Route B two miles south of town.

The driver of the car, Palmer Lohman, 26, received facial cuts and a passenger, Helen Schillings, 16, suffered a broken nose, bruises and scratches. Both were taken to Perry County Hospital in Perryville.

10 injuries treated

WEIGHT WATCHERS — The smaller, lighter cartridge (bottom) has been designed by the U.S. Army Munitions Command for use in a M16 rifle. The cartridge is consumed when the round is fired and therefore no brass is needed. The round shown above is the present 5.56 brass cartridge. The new cartridge will reduce the soldier's ammunition load and eliminate the need for brass. (U.S. Army photo)

Jet crashes

PARIS (AP) — A Brazilian jetliner with engine trouble crashed into a field today as the pilot was approaching Orly Airport for an emergency landing. Officials reported only a few survivors among the 117 passengers and 17 crew members.

The pilot had radioed he was having trouble with some of his four jet engines and the way had been cleared to give him priority landing rights.

But the French civil aviation authority said the Boeing 707 plunged to the ground about three miles south of Orly, the main Paris air traffic center.

Police said three persons who were still alive had been taken from the wreckage. There were no immediate reports whether anybody on the ground at the crash site was killed.

The Varig Airlines jetliner was on a flight from Sao Paulo, Brazil, to Paris with a stopover at Rio de Janeiro.

7 cases heard in City Court

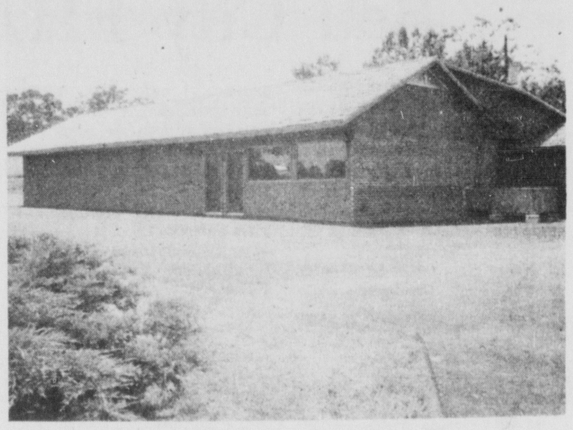

CHARLESTON — Seven cases heard in City Court this week have resulted in five fines and two bond forfeitures.

Included were:

Paul Ateis of East Prairie, 19, peace disturbance, forfeited $25 bond; Jerry W. Weems, 24, of Charleston, fighting and peace disturbance, forfeited $25 bond; Dorris Monrow, public intoxication and peace disturbance, fined $28.

John Tatum, 17, of Anniston, careless and reckless driving, fined $17; Paul Poley, 42, of East Prairie, running a stop sign, fined $12; Tommy Lee Franklin, 17, of Charleston, running a red light, fined $12; and L. C. Clark of Bell City, careless and reckless driving, fined $17.

More than 96 per cent of Egypt is desert.

Open for business

Don's Steak House, located on South Prairie Street in Bloomfield, is now open for business under the management of owner Don Gibbs. Top quality steaks, char- broiled by Marvin Bennett, chef, will be featured along with a smorgasbord on week days from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Menu service is available from 4 p.m. to 10 p.m.

Applications for postal examination ends Friday

Postmaster Donald Pasaka reported today that due to the response to the recent examination announcement for clerk- carrier at the Sikeston Post Office, the application opportunity will be withdrawn at the close of business Friday.

"All application forms must be completed and mailed, or turned in at the Sikeston Post Office by midnight on July 13, 1973 to be considered," Pasaka said.

The postmaster stated that the names of those passing this test would be placed on an "eligible register" in the order of their scores, and from this list will be chosen the employes needed to fill vacancies at the Sikeston Post Office for the next year or so.

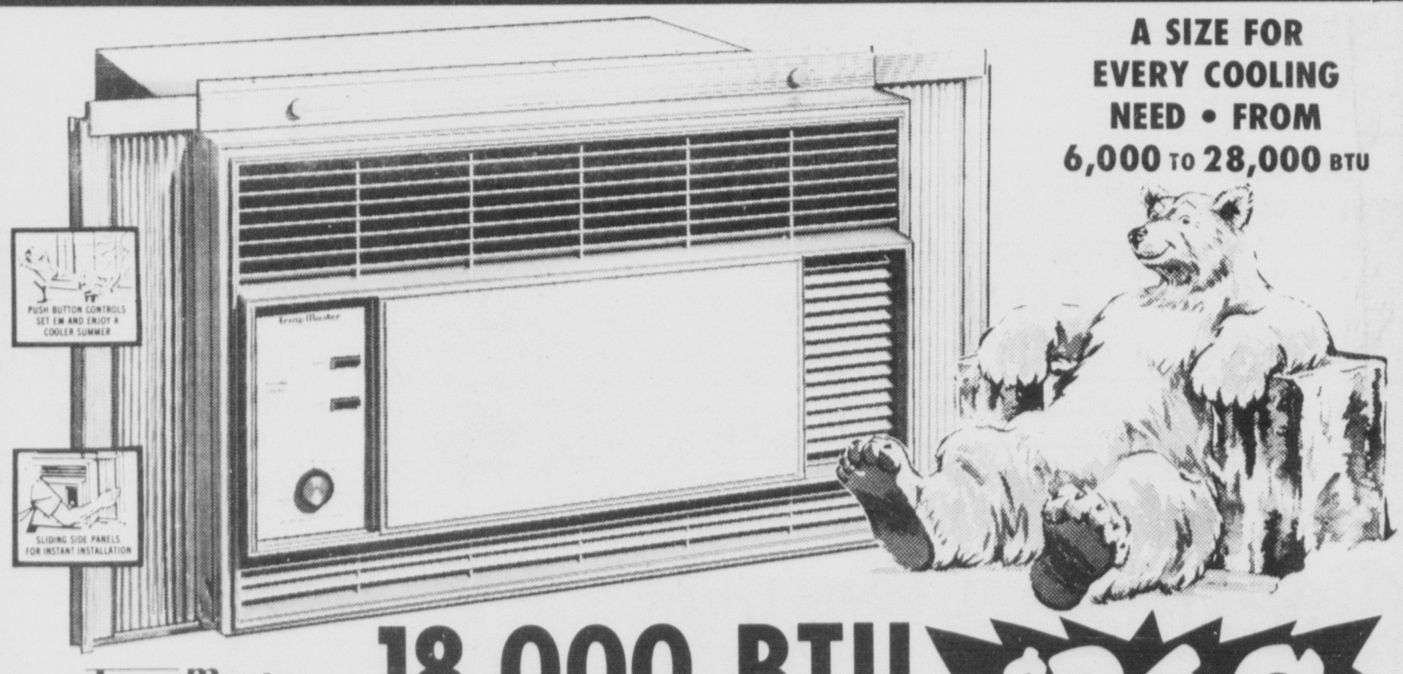

Correction

Theodore Hicks of Morley pleaded guilty to charges of nonsupport Tuesday in Magistrate Court. It was incorrectly reported in Tuesday's edition of The Daily Standard that he had pleaded not guilty.

Hicks punishment was taken under advisement by Judge Lloyd Briggs.

Also, in Magistrate Court Tuesday, a preliminary hearing for Dennis Wilson on charges of possession of a stolen automobile was set for July 31 after he entered a plea of innocent.

Childress returns to Sikeston

Joseph Lee Childress, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Childress, has returned to his hometown of Sikeston to represent the Calgon Commercial Division. He will be selling Calgon's complete line of environmental and sanitation products to businesses in the Sikeston, West Plains, Cairo, Cape Girardeau and surrounding areas.

Childress, who moved here from Orlando, Fla., is a member of the American Society For Personnel Administrators and the American Management Association. He attended Murray State University in Murray, Ky.

Preparing for Vegas

Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Stephens of Jacksonville, Ill., are busy preparing for a trip to Las Vegas, Nev., which they won in a drawing last month sponsored by the downtown merchants in Sikeston. They will leave St. Louis Aug. 5 and return Aug. 7. A travel agency is taking care of the arrangements.

Bank affiliation approved

ST. LOUIS (AP)--The Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System has approved the affiliation of Bank of Kennett, Mo., with First Union, Inc., a St. Louis-based bank holding company, it was announced today.

The Bank of Kennett, in southeastern Missouri, had total deposits of $27.8 million and total assests of $31.4 million as of June 30.

A spokesman for First Union said the affiliation agreement called for an exchange of stock of the Bank of Kennett for First Union common stock. Under the agreement, the southeastern Missouri bank will continue to operate independently with its present management, the spokesman said.

First Union is comprised of 15 banks throughout the state.

Doctor attends seminar

CHARLESTON — Dr. and Mrs. D. A. Raithel of Charleston recently returned from Houston, Tex., where he attended a special educational seminar conducted by Parker Chiropractic Research Foundation.

Based in Fort Worth, Tex., the foundation has reached international note in the past few years, attracting thousands of doctors and their assistants to bimonthly seminars devoted to the continuing progress and development of the chiropractic profession.

Approximately 1,500 doctors, wives and chiropractic assistants from the United States, Canada and several overseas countries attended the July 4-8 homecoming event.

Highlighting the basic curriculum of the seminar was a special guest appearance by Leonard Zunin, M. D., author of the recently published "Contact: The First Four Minutes," consultant to the Institute of Reality Therapy and founder and director of Human Relations Consultants.

Dr. Zunin is a nationally recognized authority in the field of personal communication.

Industrial consultant Charles M. "Chuck" Hanna gave a commentary on modern man, morals and current events gleaned from his careers as publicist, author and research psychologist.

Also making a guest appearance was Houston - based psycho- cybernetics expert Dick Semaan.

David D. Palmer, grandson of the founder of chiropractic science and currently president of Palmer College of Chiropractic in Davenport, Iowa, was a special guest of honor at this 207th seminar of the foundation.

Fabick honored

ST. LOUIS — Francis J. Fabick of St. Louis, president of John Fabick Tractor Co., was honored at the World Trade Week luncheon as recipient of the "1973 International Trader of the Year" award.

Fabick is active in the overall direction of the firm's five business locations which serve 73 counties in Missouri and Illinois. In addition, he is responsible for the sale and distribution of his firm's products throughout the free world, in such countries as France, West Germany, Iraly, Greece, Lebanon and Spain.

Because of the successful export program directed by Fabick, the firm received the Presidential "E" Award in 1964 for excellence in exporting. Then, in 1972, the firm received the "E Star" Award for continued increased overseas sales. Fabick is also chairman of the St. Louis Regional Export Expansion Council.

New doctor to soon be at Medical Arts

Dr. Sen Shen Huang, a doctor of obstetrics and gynecology, will soon become an associate of Dr. Grinny Ho at the Medical Arts Center, 808 E. Wakefield St.

Dr. Huang, a native of Taiwan, has been living in the United States for five years. After graduating from Cline Medical College in Taiwan and completing one year of internship in the college, Dr. Huang left Formosa in 1968 to complete another one- year pediatric internship at Misercodia Hospital in New York City.

During the last three years, he completed his residency at the New York Infirmary, which is affiliated with New York University.

Dr. Huang said in an interview last week that he and Dr. Ho have been friends for 12 years. They met while attending medical school in Taiwan.

Dr. Sen Shen Huang

Dr. Huang, his wife Nancy and their 2- year- old son George will make their home at 201 Kennedy Drive.

Mayors urged to write Gov. about roads

SCOTT CITY — Clarence Lee Shirrell of Missouri Transportation and Development Council of Cape Girardeau spoke to Scott County mayors Tuesday night at Rainbow Inn about roads in the state that need repairing.

Shirrell urged the mayors to write to Gov. Christopher Bond or the Transportation Council about roads that need repairing. He distributed pamphlets to the mayors to give to the people in their towns who would like to write to the Governor about such roads.

Phil Kelly of the Planning and Zoning Commission at the University of Missouri Extension Center in Benton, reported to the mayors the problems the counties may have if people continue to move from the cities to the county. Kelly told the mayors to make sure the newcomers are paying their share of expenses, since someone will have to foot the bill.

Ted Houser of Bootheel Regional Planning Commission in Malden met for the last time with the mayors and told them that since he will be moving to Quincy, Ill. he hopes his new replacement will work with the group. He asked the mayors to give their support to him.

Bloomfield Center to open Monday

BLOOMFIELD— The Bloomfield Child Care Center will open Monday at 6:15 a.m.

Mrs. Barbara Barton is director of the center, which will be governed by the board of directors composed of patients, businessmen, social workers, eucators, and ministers.

Other staff members include Mrs. Edgar Chapman, dietitian; Mrs. Mary Ezell, head teacher and Mrs. Debbie Pullum, teacher. Miss Elizabeth Welborn is organizational director of the center.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat and corn futures prices were strong in early dealings on the Chicago Board of Trade today but soybeans were weak.

Mitchell says President will defend himself

WASHINGTON (AP) — John N. Mitchell said today President Nixon ultimately will defend his own good name in the Watergate scandal, and a ranking Republican suggested anew that the President discuss the case personally with investigating senators.

Mitchell, the former attorney general and campaign director, defended himself and the President in a second day of televised testimony before the Watergate committee.

Nixon has said he will not appear before the panel.

"I think the good name of the President is going to be protected by the facts and by the President himself ..," Mitchell said.

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., asked Mitchell how the panel can get Nixon's response to Watergate testimony. "How do we get to complete the record in some respects?" he asked.

"I would believe and hope that after your hearings are over, the President will respond to the salient points of your hearing," Mitchell said.

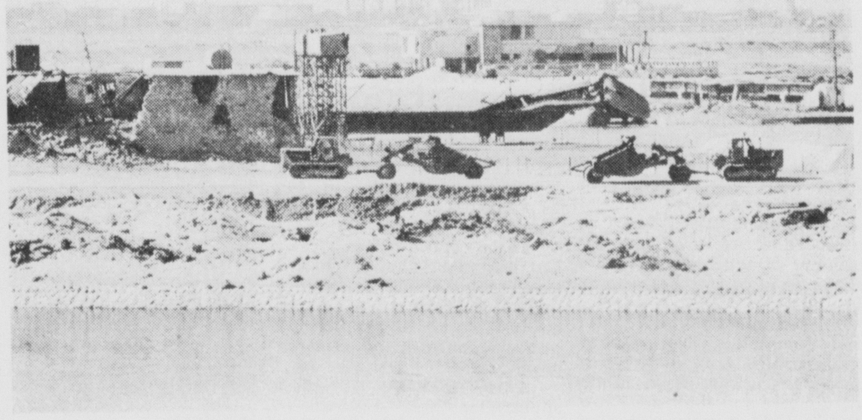

"You think he should?" Baker asked.

"I believe that he will," Mitchell said.

Baker said he knows of no way the committee can compel Nixon to testify. But he noted that in 1919, President Woodrow Wilson, in connection with ratification of the Treaty of Versailles, invited the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to a meeting at the White House, where he underwent questioning.

Governors conference ends

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — A flurry of controversy over the Alaskan oil pipeline out of the way, the Midwest Governors' Conference moved toward adjournment today.

The only controversial issue to emerge during the four-day conference in this scenic resort town was resolved Tuesday when the governors voted 6-5 against a resolution supporting a study of a trans-Canada route for bringing Alaskan oil to the Midwest.

The final day was devoted to housekeeping chores, such as election of officers and selection of officers and selection of a 1974 conference site, and a discussion of goal-setting and future problems.

The pipeline resolution was to have been discussed on the final day of the conference, but its sponsor, Gov. Patrick Lucey of Wisconsin, asked for a vote Tuesday because he had to return home.

Rejection of the resolution avoided any formal position on the part of the Midwest governors in the dispute over whether Alaskan oil should be shipped to the West Coast or the oil-starved Midwest.

The highlight of Tuesday night's activity was a formal state dinner, at which the governors dined on roast buffalo, pheasant from South Dakota, antelope stroganoff, braised elk and champagne.

More than 200 persons paid $50 each to attend the banquet with the chief executives.

Three other resolutions were before the conference.

One, introduced by Gov. Wendell Anderson of Minnesota, would end export restrictions on soybeans and other farm products.

Cards rally

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When the St. Louis Cardinals were last seen in Dodger Stadium, they were all but buried in the National League East.

But they're back and suddenly are pressing Chicago for first place.

"Timely hitting, excellent pitching and good defense," responded Red Schoendienst, the manager of the Cardinals, when asked to explain his team's sudden and almost miraculous turnabout.

"We just haven't been making the mistakes we used to make."

Until Tuesday night Dodger Pilot Walter Alston could have made the same statement.

But St. Louis edged the Dodgers 5-4 and did it primarily with Los Angeles' mistakes.

"We haven't been making mistakes, but we sure made them tonight," Alston said after the game in which an error on Dave Lopes and an easy fly ball by Lou Brock fell untouched between Willie Davis and Bill Buckner contributed directly to two St. Louis runs.

Still, the Dodgers almost pulled it out in the ninth.

Bill Russell got his third hit of the game—jumping his average to .308—and pinch hitter Manny Mota and Buckner followed with singles to score once and get the Dodgers within a run.

But Schoendienst, maneuvering like a chess master, twice went to his bullpen, employing his fifth and sixth pitchers of the night, and finally got out of it as the Dodgers left the tying and winning runs on base.

Joe Ferguson, back in the lineup after missing 20 games because of a broken right thumb, lined a two-out drive barely foul down the rightfield line, and then grounded to third for the final out of the game.

Tom Murphy, the former California Angel pitcher, started the game for St. Louis and wound up with his second win in a row.

9-day deer season set

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Conservation Commission has approved a nine-day gun deer season, Nov. 17-25, with several significant changes from the 1972 season.

The deer archery season was set for Oct.1-Nov. 16 and Nov. 26-Dec. 31.

The commission approved an antlered deer season Nov. 17-23 and an any-deer season Nov. 24-25 for management units 2-35-7-8-9, and an antlered deer season Nov. 17-25 for units 1-46-10.

Units 1 and 2 are in northwest Missouri. No. 3 is in northeast Missouri, No. 4 is west central Missouri, No. 5 in central Missouri, No. 6 is near St. Louis and No. 7 is southwest Missouri. No. 8 is southern Missouri, No. 9 is between Crystal City and Dexter, and No. 10 is the Bootheel area.

The commission also removed the requirement that antlers must be forked, making spike bucks legal. However, the antler must protrude through the skin to be a legal antler.

Bowhunters may not hunt during the gun season without a firearms deer permit.

The length of the season is similar to last year. Also same as last year is the two days of any deer hunting in some units and the placing of the any-deer segment of the hunt at the end, rather than at the beginning of the season.

Despite a total harvest of 30,084 deer in 1972, the deer biologists see only one problem area. That is unit 6, near St. Louis, which received a 37 per cent increase in pressure last year. The increase in deer numbers is not keeping pace with the increase in hunters in that area, conservation commission officials said.

Here is a description of the hunting units:

Unit 1 — West of U. S. Highway 69 from the Missouri River to the Iowa line.

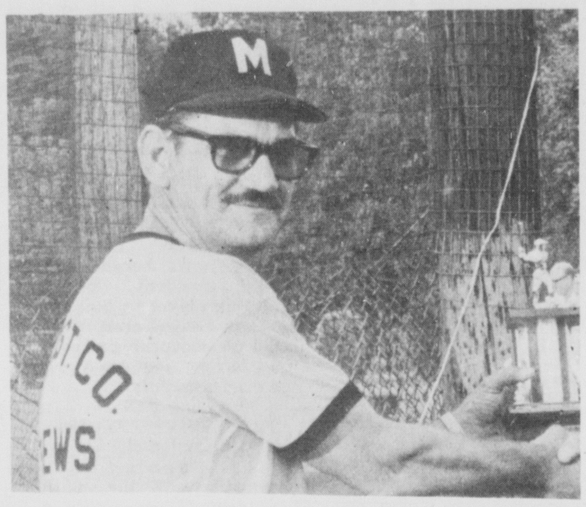

Unit 2 — East of U. S. 69 north to Interstate 70, and Unit 3 — East of U. S. 63 and north of Interstate 70.

Unit 4 — South of Interstate 70, west to Missouri highway 13, north of Interstate 44.

Terry Comstock, of Budweiser, proudly receives the Most Valuable Player trophy of the Sikeston Fast Pitch League.

Eby's Distributing's Dave Kelso accepts a trophy for an outstanding job as manager in the Sikeston Fast Pitch League.

Receiving the outstanding job as manager trophy is Albert Freeman of the Ziegenhorn Insurance Agency of the Sikeston Fast Pitch League.

Gideon upset

BERNIE — Glen Daughtery homered in the last of the sixth inning Tuesday night to life the Bernie All-Stars to a 3-2 victory over Neelyville in first round play of the Bernie Invitational Tournament. Puxico snapped a thirteen game Gideon winning streak with a 7-3 win over the New Madrid Country powers.

Semi-final play gets under way Thursday with Hornersville, a 17-0 victor over Dexter, facing Parma, who defeated Bell City 15-2, at 7 p.m. Puxico and Bernie square off at 8:30. The finals will be held Friday.

Howard named scout

Gary Howard, 810 E. Gladys, Sikeston, was recently named the new Southeast Missouri District Scout for the Minnesota Twins organization. He was previously the coach for the Elks Club in the Sr. Babe Ruth League. Howard works at Homestead Distributing Co. and is former resident of Cahokia, Ill.

Benefit games

Two benefit All- Star softball games will be played July 22 at Matthews in behalf of David 'Red' Thompson, who recently suffered a heart attack. Thompson played in the Sikeston Fast Pitch League on the Eagles Club and was pitcher. The opening game will start at 2:30.

Tourney openers Monday

New Madrid drew a first round bye for next week's Jr. Babe Ruth district baseball tournament at Charleston.

East Prairie faces Tri-County at 5 p.m. Monday in the first of three first round games. Chaffee faces Jackson at 7 and Charleston goes against Sikeston at 9.

The double elimination tournament is scheduled to end Saturday, July 21, barring any rain.

Trevino favored

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Lee Trevino, the event's defending champion, and leading moneywinner Bruce Crampton are headliners for the $210,000 St. Louis Golf Classic, scheduled July 19-22 at Norwood Hills.

Rated challengers to the two are South Africa's Gary Player and current Masters titleholder Tommy Aaron. A professionalamateur event will precede the tournament July 18.

Law 'Practiced' Inside Prison

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — With a fancy name and a title on the door, Henry Mosiello opened a law firm inside Trenton State Prison.

The firm, Inmates Legal Associates, specializes in legal work for clients already convicted. It's the new breed of jailhouse lawyers.

Now relinquishing his duties as executive director of the firm to continue his studies and work on a legal challenge to the county grand jury system in New Jersey, Mosiello, a convicted murderer, has left a flourishing "law practice" in the maximum security institution.

Mosiello, 35, was given a life sentence for the murder of a shopkeeper in February 1970, after a codefendant testified for the prosecution.

Mosiello, who said he designed racing car engines before his arrest, was made a clerk of the prison's small law library, where his shingle reads "Hank Mosiello, Esq." From there he built up his practice.

Mosiello's law work started where most criminal lawyers leave off: Everyone he dealt with had already been convicted and Mosiello took over from there, preparing briefs, reviewing evidence and writing complaints.

With the assistance of attorneys from the public defender's office, he has two actions pending in state courts and one appeal being prepared for the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Because neither he nor his associates are licensed to practice law, all their work must be handled with practicing attorneys.

But with time on their hands, he and the other founding members of ILA, Danny Obstein and Hap Laws, are able to complete thorough research beyond that which a lawyer would have time to do.

"Hank's a pretty sharp guy who is quite an organizer," said Arnold Melk of the public defender's office.

Mosiello said in an interview in the prison that he started the ILA as a paraprofessional guild to assist the public defender, despite the skepticism of prison authorities.

The guards, too, were resentful, he said. "But that attitude changed when they saw we were not out to destroy the institution."

A change occurred in the prison with the arrival of a new warden, William Fauver, Mosiello said.

"He's a very enlightened man. Before Fauver it was a 'shotgun and club' administration. Everything was repressive. Mr. Fauver came with an open mind and was willing to listen. If the idea sounds feasible, he gives you a chance."

In addition to the ILA work, Mosiello has several other projects.

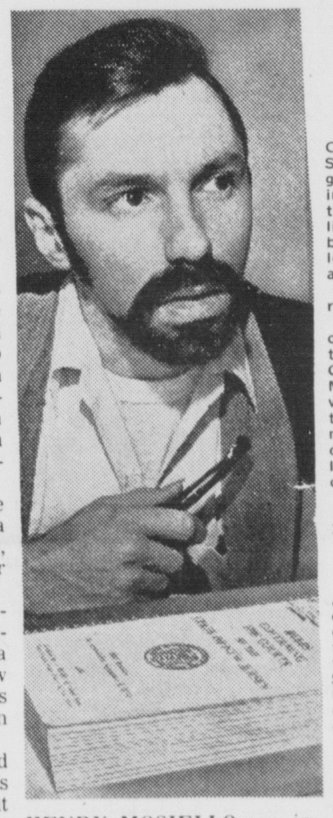

He criticized the grand jury system — the method used to indict most of the inmates at the prison before they went to trial — as "a tool for the prosecutor and not the safeguard it was designed to be."

He and several other inmates plan to take law aptitude boards and then study courses prepared by several New Jersey law schools. He is studying law through a correspondence course and his mother, in her 70s, brings him law books.

"It's extremely difficult," he said. "You're not pressed for time, but you can't cheat. If you have any questions, you have to go to the law library and research them yourself. There's no professor around to answer your questions."

Mosiello is also working on his own case. The appellate division of Superior Court recently remanded his case to the trial court, Superior Court in Hudson County, N.J., to review the evidence leading to his conviction.

Should his appeal succeed and he is eventually freed, Mosiello said he would want to continue his legal studies.

HENRY MOSIELLO—an inmate of Trenton, N.J., State Prison, has started a law practice inside the prison, Inmates Legal Associates, that handles appeals and briefs for other prisoners, assisting the Public Defender's Office.

NEW CHIEF domestic adviser to the President is Melvin R. Laird, lured out of temporary retirement to take the post formerly held by John Ehrlichman, resigned.

Today in U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, July 11, the 192nd day of 1973. There are 173 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1804, Vice President Aaron Burr mortally wounded the American statesman, Alexander Hamilton, in a pistol duel at Weehawken, N.J.

On this date:

In 1533, Pope Clement VII excommunicated King Henry VIII of England from the Roman Catholic Church.

In 1767, the sixth American president, John Quincy Adams, was born in Braintree, Mass.

In 1814, a British fleet captured the town of Eastport, Maine.

Prayer for today

from the Upper Room

"What is man that you should be mindful of him; or the son of man that you should care for him? You have made him little less than the angels, and crowned him with glory and honor." (Psalm 8:5- 6)

PRAYER: O God, You have created each of us for a special reason. Help us today to come closer to a better understanding of Your providential design for us. In the name of Christ. Amen.

Radio station aids blind

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — At 7 a.m. every day a radio station takes to the air from this Southern Illinois city to broadcast to a select group of 100 listeners.

A special receiver is needed to pick up the programs and there are eligibility requirements on who gets the radios.

It's part of a program called "The Talking Book", a closed-circuit radio service designed to provide in-depth news and educational information for blind and physically handicapped persons in the St. Louis area.

The program originates from WMRY, operated by the Catholic Priests of the Oblates of Mary Immaculate Order. "The Talking Book" is broadcast over a special "sub channel" which is separate from WMRY's music and news programming.

The Rev. Boniface L. Wittenbrink, director of services for the blind and physically handicapped, launched the program March 1. There are now 100 blind and handicapped persons who have the special receivers which are owned by the station and loaned to the listeners. He said about 500 more sets have been ordered and that he hopes to have 1,000 sets in the field by the end of the year.

Funded through grants and staffed with mostly volunteer help, "The Talking Book" provides 18 hours of news and information daily, with two-hour readings in the morning and evening of St. Louis' daily newspapers.

There are segments devoted to special interest programming and books, both fiction and nonfiction, are read at certain times of the day. News and feature magazines are also read.

About 300 volunteers record the magazine readings on cassette tapes and bring them to the radio station for airing, according to program coordinator Mary Ann Post. The newspaper readings are done on a "live" basis.

"Commercial radio cannot provide all the information blind people need. The newscasts just skim the surface while the newspaper readings provide the depth," Father Wittenbrink said.

Books, ranging from the classics to new best-sellers, are read in 56-minute segments daily until they are finished, Miss Post said. At the end of one book, a promotional announcement is made telling the listener the next day's reading selection.

A 21-member advisory council, including 12 members who are blind, is retained by the station to assist in programming.

The special receivers, which cost about $50 each, are purchased by the radio station and loaned free of charge to eligible listeners. Applicants must be classified as blind by a physician or be registered with the State Services for the Blind.

Ann Manhart, a resident of an Edwardsville, Ill., nursing home, said she listens to WMRY's "The Talking Book" "every chance I get."

"I can't see to read the newspaper and that radio sure keeps me up on things," she said. Mrs. Manhart will be 99 in October.

What's the law?

The case of the amorous birdbrain

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Carol looked as pretty as a package and amorous Ruppert succeeded in unwrapping her. Grabbing her from behind, he pulled her into a darkened doorway and performed his skullduggery. As he departed, however, two alert police officers spotted him and, becuase he was 18 years of age, he was charged with statutory rape.

"The charge is improper," insisted Ruppert's lawyer in court. "The fact is my client has more brains in his little finger than he has in his whole head. He's a birdbrain. According to all the psychological tests, he has the mentality of an 8- year- old child. Therefore, he shouldn't be treated the same as someone 18 years of age but, on the contrary, he should be treated as a youthful offender."

"While he may not have the intelligence of an 18- year- old," retorted the prosecuting attorney, "Ruppert's certainly got the build of one. Consequently there's no reason to let him off the hook.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you treat birdbrain Ruppert as a youthful offender and let him off the hook on the rape charge?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that when a statute designates an age in relationship to the commission of a crime, it refers to the accused person's chronological age and not his mental age arrived at by psychological tests. There is no immunity for lack of mentality, concluded the judge, in the absence of legislation to that effect.

Frankly speaking

Fuel allocation program needs new overhaul

Two months ago Congress passed my amendment to the Economic Stabilization Act which empowered the President to establish a mandatory fuel allocation program. Instead of using this authority, the Administration has fiddled around with its so-called "voluntary" program, which has been a collossal bust.

Midwest farmers continue to be plagued by a shortage of gasoline and diesel fuel which has seriously hampered planting and early harvests.

There is a very real prospect that farm crops, even if planted, may rot in the fields for want of fuel to harvest them. And even if harvested, the crops may not be able to get to market unless trucking companies can resolve their fuel problems.

Independents Treated Unfairly

Independent fuel distributors have not received a fair share of available products. What they have been able to obtain is often priced wholesale at or above the retail price charged by their competitors.

Public services generally have been more furtunate but they, too, are facing startling increases in price.

One Missouri school district, for instance, was notified by its fuel supplier that while its contract would be renewed the price would increase by 74 per cent! Another Missouri city was on the verge of running out of gasoline for its police cars.

Low in Propane

A particularly vexing problem is presented by the unusually low stocks of propane and the absence of any plan to hike production. Without a substantial improvement in the situation, there will not be adequate supplies for drying crops, and industries which depend on propane as a substitute for scarce natural gas may go under.

There is no longer a question that we must move to a mandatory allocation program. Beyond that, however, it is essential that the program be fundamentally restructured to take account of the glaring shortcomings of the voluntary program.

Inadequate staffing, the absence of any means to make up supplies lost as a result of oil companies leaving an area; lack of coordinated price and supply policy, and a poorly defined and administered system for dealing with resolve these problem areas, I have called on the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, which reported my original allocation legislation, to conduct prompt oversight hearings.

Going mandatory will be of little help if the program itself is not significantly improved.

Weather causes more problems than fuel crisis

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The weather has caused more trouble for Missouri farmers than the fuel situation, the Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Monday in its weekly report.

The service said crops continue to be late because of the persistent wet weather earlier this year, althouth farmers made important strides in field work last week, averaging five days fit for field work.

The service said 68 per cent of the wheat crop had been harvested, compared to 90 per cent for the comparable period last year.

The second growth of alfalfa was 45 per cent cut, compared with 60 per cent last year. Timothy and clover hay was 69 per cent cut, compared with 79 per cent a year ago.

The service said soybean planting was 94 per cent complete and termed the crop fair to good. Sorghum planting was also 94 per cent complete. Both had been completed at this time in 1972.

The cotton crop was reported in fair condition, with 29 per cent reaching the squaring stage, compared to 76 per cent a year ago.

Soil moisture was reported as generally adequate throughout the state with only isolated dry spots.

Snipped fresh chives may be added to muffins made from buttermilk biscuit mix.

Letters to the Editor

7-25-73

Col. Charlie Blanton, Editor
Sikeston, Standard
Dear Col:

Year in and year out radio and television has bombarded the hard working tax-paying citizen with propaganda favoring the so-called underdog.

Recently a friend sent me something written by Miller Upton, President of Beloit College I found very refreshing. I am sure many of your readers and good citizens of Sikeston will find it likewise.

It is titled "I'm For The Achiever." It reads:

"I have just about reached the end of my tolerance for the way our society now seems to have sympathetic concern only for the misfit, the pervert, the drug addict, the drifter, the chronic criminal, the under-achiever. It seems to me we have lost touch with reality and become warped in our attachments.

I felt it is time for someone like me to stand up and say, in short, "I'm for the upperdog!"

I'm for the achiever — the one who sets out to do something and does it; the one who recognizes the problems and opportunities at hand, and endeavors to deal with them; the one who is successful at his immediate task because he is not worrying about someone else's failings; the one who doesn't consider it "square" to be constantly looking for more to do, who isn't always rationalizing why he shouldn't be doing what he is doing, the one, in short, who carries the work of his part of the world squarely on his shoulders. It is important to recognize that the quality of any society is directly related to the quality of the individuals who make it up. Therefore, let us stop referring naively to creating[a "great" society. It is enough at this stage of our development to aspire to create a decent society. And to do so, our first task is to help each individual be decent unto himself and in his relationship with other individuals.

We will never create a good society, much less a great one, until individual excellence and achievement are not only respected but encouraged. That is why I am for the upperdog- the achiever, the succeeder."

Sincerely,
Fred W. Bender

THE TRASH BARRELS BLUES

Sikeston is my home
It is the only town I know
We have had mayors come
And we have had mayors go

It was rumored some were crooks
That they stole our city blind
So I voted for city management
Now I could kick my own behind

Our Fire Chief went on the air
And this is what he had to say
You cannot burn anymore papers
It is the Law — and you must obey

So I called my buddy Danny
Said, Haul them barrells away
Then they lifted the burning ban
The very next damn day

Now I have no place to burn
Since my barrell's were hauled away
I think I'll dump my trash
Somewhere along North Kingshighway

Those barrells cost me four-fifty
And I had just bought two
I just might sue the city
Before I am through

So if you have a trash barrel
Don't have it hauled away
You cannot believe our council
No matter what they say

Dear Readers,

July is National Hot Dog Month, and the National Hot Dog and Sausage Council, Elmhurst, Ill., has sent some interesting and easy to fix hot dog creations.

Frankfurters Creole, a southern hospitality dish from below the Mason- Dixon line, is a jambalaya treat to please the most discriminating palate. To best enjoy it, serve with hot cornbread.

One doesn't have to own a wok to enjoy Sweet and Sour Frankfurters. This tasty, exotic dish can easily be prepared in a skillet and it's guaranteed not to leave a person hungry an hour later.

Chubby Puppies are something the kids will really love. The old time favorite now has a new, easy eating form. Grown- ups, too, will love the crackling delight not only for its flavor, but also as an economic source of protein.

Have a good month of July with these easy fixings and don't forget the plain old hot dog, broiled, boiled or over an open fire. Good, simple, tasty.

J.S.

FRANKFURTERS CREOLE

1 lb. frankfurters
2 tbsp. vegetable oil
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
1 medium crushed garlic clove
1/4 cup water
1 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 tsp. chili powder
1 tsp. sugar
1/4 tsp. salt
1 can (10 3/4 oz.) condensed tomato soup

Cut frankfurters in thirds, diagonally.

In skillet, saute onion, celery, green pepper and garlic in oil. Stir in soup, water, Worcestershire sauce, chili powder, sugar and salt.

Stir in frankfurters; cover and heat to serving temperature.

Makes 4 to 5 servings.

SWEET AND SOUR FRANKFURTERS

1 can (1 lb. 4 oz.) pineapple chunks in unsweetened juice
1/4 cup light brown sugar, packed
2 tbsp. cornstarch
1/4 cup vinegar
4 green onions, cut in julienne stripes
1 tbsp. soy sauce
1/2 tsp. salt
1 lb. frankfurters, cut into lengthwise quarters
1 can (8 oz.) water chestnuts, cut in half
1 small green pepper, chopped
2 medium tomatoes, cut into wedges.

Drain pineapple chunks, reserving juice.

Combine brown sugar and cornstarch; stir in reserved pineapple juice, vinegar, onions, soy sauce and salt. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until sauce is thickened.

Boil 2 minutes. Stir in frankfurters, water chestnuts and green pepper. Top with tomato wedges.

Heat to serving temperature. Serve over rice.

Makes 6 servings.

CHUBBY PUPPIES

1 lb. frankfurters
4 cups shortening
10 round sticks
BATTER:
3 eggs, separated
3/4 cup milk
2 tbsp. melted butter
1 1/2 cups all- purpose flour
1 tsp. salt
1 to 2 tbsp. fresh lemon juice
4 tsp. dry mustard
Or
3 tsp. brown sugar
or
4 tsp. molasses

To make batter: Beat egg yolks with milk and melted butter. Add flour, sifted with salt. Beat until mixture is very smooth.

Stir in juice. Beat egg whites until stiff, and fold into batter.

Add flavoring.

Stir in whole frankfurters. Chill 2 hours or overnight.

Fry frankfurters in very hot (300 degree) shortening. The batter will swell up and stick to the frankfurter.

Fry until golden brown, gently turning once.

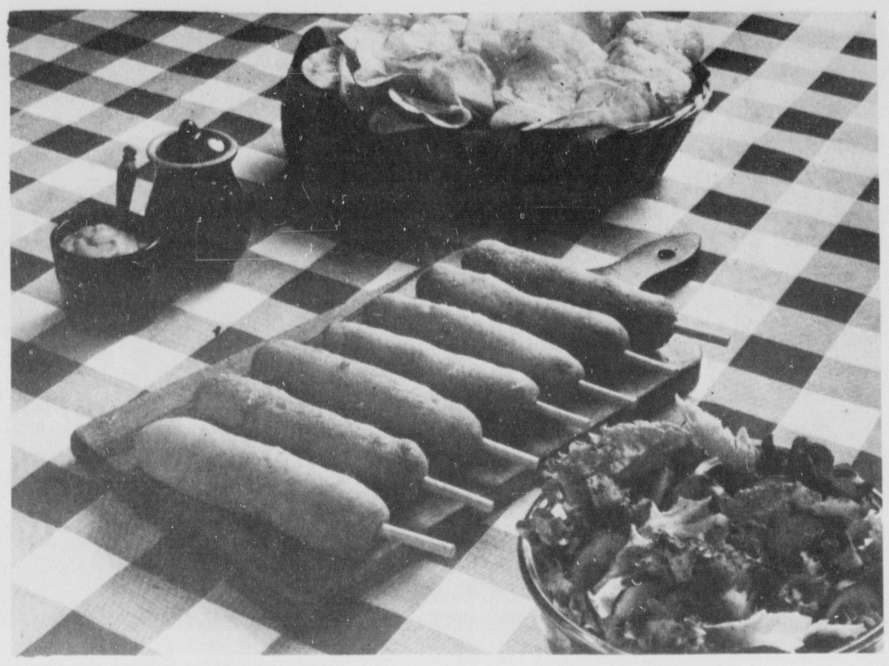

Removing from shortening, let drain and insert sticks.

American writers have given a variety of names to the hot dog: frankfurters, franks, wieners, red hots, pups, hot pups, viennas, and wienies. Hot dogs covered with chili sauce are known as "chihuahuas" in some areas. In other places, hot dogs smothered in onions are called "poodles". A "chorizo" is a highly- spiced hot dog, sold either fresh or dried in the Southwestern portions of the United States.

In the United States, color preferences in hot dogs vary. In some states, where a "red" hot dog is preferred, special casings impart the color. Elsewhere, color is achieved through smoking.

The largest hot dog ever made in the United States is believed to have been produced by a packer in Michigan. It was 17 feet long, 5 inches in diameter, and weighed 80 pounds. The bun also set a record. A tractor and trailer were required to haul the giant sandwich to the scene of its unveiling.

The record in total length and weight of a hot dog is held by the German Butchers Guild. In the late 1600s, the Guild producted a hot dog-like sausage that was reputedly more than half a mile in length and weighed 885 pounds.

Coffee Corner by Cherie

Have you ever tried to pack a little boy for a month at a camp? Ha, let me tell you something — it's almost an impossibility!! I mean you wouldn't think it would be too difficult, after all, the camp sends you a list (rather a long list I might add) of dire necessities he'll need and really it doesn't look like it's going to be such a big job at all. BUT ...

I found that just as fast as I was packing, Lee was coming right along behind me and repacking! For example, the camp suggests sending five wash cloths and ten towels for their months stay, and knowning Lee as well as I do, I decided five towels and three washclothes would be ample.

Lee in turn removed all but one wash cloth and two towels and in the space that he saved he inserted some bottle rockets and a portable radio — I mean he is interested in taking real necessities, something he knows will really be used instead of just carrying around dead and useless weight like washclothes and towels. I remember the first time he went off to camp for two weeks, what a shock! I had packed a change of clothes for each day plus two extra outfits, ample soap and towels, etc., and I didn't worry one bit because I knew he had all the comforts of home. When he arrived home, he hadn't once used his toothbrush, the soap was still in its wrapper and all the outfits still folded neatly in the trunk, with the exception of the one he'd worn to camp the first day he went and one other. I had to scrape him clean and soak him for an hour to get off the filth, but first, (and I kid you not this is the honest to goodness truth), Charles and I had to take the scissors and cut him out of his pants because part of the snaps were rusted shut. Just think, that was only two weeks, wonder what a month will bring? Oh well, back to packing and I think I better check the suitcase carefully cause now the dog seems to be missing and no telling what he took out to make room for her!!!

Carthage, not Bull Run sight of first battle

EDITOR'S NOTE—the writer of the following is historian for The Carthage Press and president of Jasper County Historical Society. He has devoted many years of intensive research into various facets of the Civil War and particularly details of the Battle of Carthage, listed in Confederate accounts as the Battle of Dry Fork, July 5, 1861.

By MARVIN L. VANGILDER
The Carthage Press
For The Associated Press

CARTHAGE, Mo. (AP) — Ask the average student — or his teacher for that matter — to name the site of the first major battle of the Civil War. His answer inevitably will be, "Bull Run."

Historians through the years have perpetuated this myth through their constant emphasis upon action east of the Mississippi River and concern with those engagements in which huge masses of men were involved.

However, the presence of huge armies and a dense civilian population does not in itself make an engagement the most significant factor in a war. Other influences are involved and in every war there are clashes in areas of little population and little note, sometimes with relatively small forces involved, which make major impacts upon the results of the war.

Such was the case in 1861-65 and a good brief can be prepared for declaring the answer of that student or his teacher should be, "Carthage," not "Bull Run."

Bull Run was a quiet little Virginia stream where young boys were swimming and fishing in peace, when, 16 days before the armies descended upon the Manassas area, the cannon boomed on a rise above another little stream --- called Dry Fork --- to launch the Battle of Carthage.

Agreed, when one compares the number of fighting men involved and the number of casualties (4,689 dead, wounded and missing at Bull Run; 244 dead, wounded and captured at Carthage, according to official records which are only approximations in both cases; the Virginia rout seems most impressive.

But look at the results.

Bull Run taught the residents of the East, both Union and Confederate, that they were in for a long and difficult war, far different than the formal dress Sunday afternoon outing they had envisioned, and caused them merely to intensify their preparations.

That was a truth residents of the West, including the citizens of pioneer Carthage, already understood. The circumstances of their lives were such that they knew from experience the character of the building crisis and the massive difficulties it posed. As a result they didn't commit the folly of donning their Sunday-to-to-meeting garments to go out to do battle. They dressed in their working clothes and went out knowing they were engaged in a kill-or-be-killed contest which would not be resolved overnight.

What was the result in a crucial campaign which reached its climax a month later at Wilson's Creek and which, after the final assessment is made, resulted in keeping Missouri in the Union.

That was a vital strategic contribution. Held for the Union, Missouri became the base from which Federal forces could be launched in their drive down the Mississippi to retrieve that vital transportation artery for Union use and simultaneously break the back of the Confederacy, eliminating one of its greatest sources of supply.

Had Missouri been lost during the campaign which included the Carthage and Wilson's Creek battles, the Mississippi would have been lost and the Confederacy would have been strengthened in a major degree. Given that tremendous added power coupled with the brilliant generalship of Robert E. Lee, the Confederacy well might have overcome the industrial might of the North before it could be fully mobilized and the war could have ended much earlier than 1865, leaving two squabbling little nations in place of the one which was secured by action taken from the base of a Missouri held for the Union by the men of Carthage and Wilson's Creek.

Therefore, it is not unreasonable to insist that the men of Carthage — the followers of Col. Franz Sigel, USA, and of Gov. Claiborne F. Jackson, Missouri State Guard — played a far more significant role than they knew and a far more decisive drama than the nation's major historians will admit in producing the final reaffirmation of Union.

In addition, the 9-mile-long Carthage battleground served as the initial on-the-job training site for many of the major military leaders who would chart the plans for necessary future engagements in both East and West and would implant their names and personalities deep within the soul of the nation's history.

THERE'S MORE THAN ONE WAY TO GET TO THE TOP of a tough hill in a cycle race — such as hoofing it. Competitors in the World Cyclo-Cross Championships of 1973 huff and puff in London with Belgium's Robert Vermiere (12) eventually coming in the winner.

3 oil companies named in suit

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Three major oil companies have been named in a $1 million damage suit filed by a rural Missouri propane and butane distributor.

The distributor, Home Gas Service Co. of Kahoka, in Clark County, contends in the suit filed in U.S. District Court Monday that one of its suppliers, Cities Service Oil Co., has conspired with other major oil companies to monopolize the market and force independent dealers out of business.

Home Gas has also asked the court for a temporary injunction preventing Cities Service from cutting off its supplies. The suit claims the oil company notified it that it would receive no more supplies after July 1. The suit also charges that eight other major oil companiesn told Home Gas that no supplies of propane and butane were available due to the fuel shortage.

The Home Gas suit names Phillips Petroleum Co. and Atlantic Richfield Corp., as "coconspirators with Cities Service.

Home Gas Co. serves 11 northern Missouri counties and portions of Iowa and Illinois.

Vasectomy Won't Harm Sex Drive

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I enjoy your column in my newspaper — keep up the good work.

I would like some information concerning the operation "vasectomy." My wife and I have been married for more than 20 years and have five grown children — so you can see if we don't always take the needed precautions there is the possibility of unwanted children.

There seem to be two different opinions — one says that sex drive is considerably decreased and the other says it isn't so.

As there is no sperm present at climax, does it not reduce the feeling of pleasure?

I have always been under the impression it was the sperm that caused this feeling. We have been advised by my doctor to have this operation, as he doesn't care to put my wife on the "pill."

Have you had any experience along this line and what are your feelings on this? How long after the operation does it take to be free of all sperm?

Would you advise this at my age? I'm in my middle 50s and my wife is about eight years younger.

Dear Reader — There is no evidence that vasectomy decreases the man's sensations or responses. The changes of this nature after the operation are usually of psychological origin and frequently because the individual doesn't understand the operation.

The sperm cells constitute a very minute portion of the orgasm, probably you can put all of the sperm cells in an area not much bigger than the head of a pin. Most of the material comes from the secretions of the prostate gland and the seminal vesicles. You may be interested to know that a number of years ago a type of vasectomy was advised to restore older men's sexual drive. It was finally concluded that it did not have any effect.

There have been a few scary reports recently on the vasectomy, most of which are exaggerations in the public press of a theory advanced on early research work on animals. Since then a number of authorities have come forth and pointed out, in a truth squad action, that there is no evidence that having a vasectomy without complications causes serious diseases or other problems.

You and your wife will have to decide whether you should have a vasectomy or not. I am not sure why she can't take the pill. Some doctors use the pill to support a woman through her menopause and thereafter to prevent post-menopausal changes. After all, they have the same effects as the normal female hormone. Your wife should not be too far off the time she would expect to undergo these changes.

An alternative to the vasectomy is the intrauterine device (IUD). These have been highly successful and can be removed at any time.

A man has to be tested over a period of time after a vasectomy to find out if he is still releasing sperm or not. It usually requires several specimens free of sperm before a doctor will feel secure that the man is no longer capable of producing sperm cells or inducing pregnancy.
